REASON FOR VOTE

Representative Pierson submitted the following reason for vote to be printed in the journal:

I voted in favor of HB 38 as a part of Governor Abbott's emergency management initiative and primarily for the mental health resources they provide. Our Texas Information and Referral Network is now the front door to virtually every state and local helpline, responding to millions of requests every year, yet it was operating under rules written long before smartphones or real-time disaster dashboards existed. The bill modernizes that framework: It adds two-way texting and around-the-clock redundancy so no caller is left on hold; requires national accreditation so every region meets the same high standard; folds 2-1-1 into our emergency management plans; and publishes de-identified, real-time demand data so local officials can target resources instantly when hurricanes, wildfires, or surging costs hit. HB 38 preserves a trusted lifeline and equips it for Texas' explosive growth without new mandates on callers and with strong privacy safeguards.

HB 104 ON THIRD READING
(by Bonnen)

HB 104, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the creation of the Texas future fund and the Texas future fund investment review board and to the permissible uses of money in the Texas future fund.

HB 3426 ON SECOND READING (by Capriglione, Landgraf, et al.)

HB 3426, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the issuance of digital driver's licenses, commercial driver's licenses, and personal identification certificates; authorizing a fee.

HB 3426 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE CAPRIGLIONE: HB 3426 modernizes the way Texans access and present their drivers' licenses by authorizing the issuance of a digital driver's license as an optional companion to the physical license.

REPRESENTATIVE CANALES: Mr. Capriglione, it's a fantastic bill. Do you know of a representative that may have filed this four times in a row?

CAPRIGLIONE: I do. Also a fantastic representative.

CANALES: Thank you for bringing this bill to the floor.

REPRESENTATIVE HOPPER: Representative, I think a lot of us here have had a lot of constituents reach out to us over the last few days with a lot of concerns with this bill, so I just want to ask you a few questions.

CAPRIGLIONE: Sure.

HOPPER: Maybe you can put their concerns to rest. First of all, how would the application detect and respond to breaches, tampering attempts, and whatnot? The bill talks about an application that you download. I assume this is a third-party application, so maybe you can speak to that.

CAPRIGLIONE: In so many ways, this is significantly more secure than the current practice. Obviously, information that's included on your driver's license is already available online. What this does is similar to a cell phone application you have now. It would be installed on your cell phone. It has certain security requirements, certain access, wireless, and so on. And as people know, obviously, applications and data stored on your cell phone is in a significantly more secure place than it would be, let's say, on a physical hard copy.

HOPPER: What happens if a user's device is stolen, lost, or compromised in any way?

CAPRIGLIONE: Again, it's relative to—let's say you lose your wallet. If you lose your wallet or your purse and someone goes through and sees your driver's license, they get all the information that's on there, right? They get your date of birth, they get your weight, and they get your home address and your full name. Whereas, if you think about what happens if you lose your cell phone, it's impossible to get inside of a cell phone, right? You would have to know the person's passwords, or you'd have to have facial recognition and be able to bypass that. So in so many ways it is significantly more secure than a physical hard copy.

HOPPER: How would law enforcement authenticate this? If you have it on your phone and you unlock your phone, how do they know it's not spoofed with a fake?

CAPRIGLIONE: If you want to think about how this would work in practice, think about how if you have—not to use a particular company—a wallet or a digital wallet already on your cell phone. You buy tickets to a sports event or something—or a music event—there's a significant amount of actual authentication that occurs between the phone and the provider. Sometimes that requires you putting in an additional passcode or, sometimes, even showing a picture of your face, as well. So in a similar way that applications are already running on people's phones, it would run that same way. For that reason, it's just, again—to belabor that point—it's significantly secure.

HOPPER: Can you imagine any sort of future condition—I don't know if this exists right now in any of the applications we're considering—where, let's say, you make a credit card purchase, and then the credit card prompts the user, the phone owner, "Hey, we'd like to have access to your driver's license. Would you like to grant access?" Do you see that this opens the door to that?

CAPRIGLIONE: No, that won't be allowed, right? Usually, that's in the operating system to allow it access to maybe the microphone or whatever—to the sensors, the speaker, and that kind of thing. But, no, this will be a self-contained application that won't have access to anything other than what the application itself grants access to.

HOPPER: So the application is going to be—the data that is backing all of this is going to be hosted in some sort of third-party provider. What kind of risk do you think that provider assumes by having all this data in one place? How do you see that working?

CAPRIGLIONE: Well, unfortunately, that data is all in one place now, right? And a lot of the information that's on your driver's license, unfortunately, is also available—in some cases publicly. If you think about how often—whether you go to a bank or whether you go to the airport or wherever it is—there's already authentication and other data that's then made available and stored in different databases everywhere. What this bill does is it directs DPS to come up with rules to protect not just the security from a cyber perspective but also to put in additional regulations to maintain individuals' privacy.

So let's talk about an example. Let's say you're 21, 22, 23 years old, and you want to prove your identity. Let's say you're going into a bar or whatever. You give that person your driver's license. You've effectively given them all of your information. This can be set out so that the reader that they have only provides the necessary information. So now you're not saying, "Hey, here's my photo, and here's all of this," which can be copied or scanned or what have you. All it's going to do is say, "This person is over 21 or under 21." So in that way, it significantly limits the amount of information. And again, just to back up one second, this is an optional license. People will still have to have their physical driver's license. But if you can think about how much easier it might be for establishments that will allow you to use it—it would just be a lot easier and actually be better for privacy issues.

HOPPER: And so if I'm offline—because that's one of the requirements of the bill is that it should be able to work offline—if I'm offline and a law enforcement officer—say no one has communication to the Internet, and a law enforcement officer comes along and says, "Hey, I'd like to look at your driver's license." "Well, I only got one on my phone. Do you want to see that?" How do they authenticate that there?

CAPRIGLIONE: First, I'll say that there would still be a requirement that you keep your physical copy with you. This does not obviate the need for you to have your physical hard copy with you, so I'll leave it at that. You'll still have to have your physical hard copy. But if you want to take it a step further, you can see that without wireless connectivity you would still have the ability to authenticate it. Whether there's a QR code on there or something that provides a lot of information about the authenticity of that device. But, again, to get to my first point: You still have to have your hard copy with you.

HOPPER: You've got to unlock your phone in order to make this possible. Do you expect you would have the driver's license holder hand their phone over to the law enforcement officer? Do you see that as being the way that this works, mechanically?

CAPRIGLIONE: No. In fact, there's a section on page 4 of Section 526.102 that specifically says that "presentation by a person on a wireless communication device of digital identification issued under this chapter does not constitute effective consent for a peace officer or any other person to access the contents." So it specifically does not allow for that.

HOPPER: Excellent. Let me ask you, what privacy protections are in place—or do you image that will be in place—to prevent some sort of data collection or surveillance of any sort of authentication process that goes on over the Internet?

CAPRIGLIONE: Well, a lot of that is going to be left to the department that, by rule, shall adopt those measures. But, again, if I can go back to the examples of just, in and of itself, how much more secure this is. One, you can hack and breach the database contents that hold your personal information and that kind of stuff. Although that's happened, it's a tall order. But the most common way is, again, when you hand that device to someone or when you hand the card to someone else, they start making copies or scanning, or they can get access from the stripe, and so on. So what the department will do is look at making sure that the only information that is transferred between the device and the person—whether that's a private establishment or what have you—is what is required and that no information is collected that is not already required by a driver's license, right? You already have to provide certain information to DPS or the DMV or what have you in terms of getting the driver's license. You wouldn't have to do anything more than that.

HOPPER: But the authentication by that third party—the law enforcement officer or whatever that's talking to you and wants to authenticate that digital driver's license—it's probably going to be through some sort of certificate authority or something of that nature? Normal sort of handshaking—

CAPRIGLIONE: Right. How they actually implement that—whether it's a public-private key or whether they use some other type of encryption methods, I'm not sure. But I think, obviously, it's going to be the department's job to make sure that this isn't breached, that this isn't hacked, and that it uses the best security that we can to make sure that we respect each individual person's privacy while also maintaining the secrecy of the information that's contained.

HOPPER: You know a lot about this, and you have a lot of expertise in this area. Based upon everything you've seen, do you think that the federal government—or any of the agencies in the federal government—would have the sophisticated ability to be able to do a man-in-the-middle attack of that authentication process and spoof a driver's license when you're trying to authenticate another one?

CAPRIGLIONE: What I'll say on that is there's already 11, 12, 13 states that do this, and we haven't seen an effective attack on that. Also the federal government, TSA, also accepts this as well. Obviously, there will be people that try to make these attempts. But I'll go back, again, to—a lot of this data is already available and unfortunately, in some cases, has been breached. This will be a much more difficult way to get access to this data.

HOPPER: Finally, what would you say to someone who's concerned that this is putting us on a path toward more of a dystopian government tracking you everywhere you go, knowing all your information, and being able to tie purchases to your identity? Right now, your identity's kind of in your pocket. We don't really trust it that much. We know that the government doesn't trust it that much because whenever they actually want to authenticate you, they want three forms of ID. Your driver's license has very little veracity at all. So what would you say to that person to say, "Don't worry about this. This isn't the path that Texas is putting you on"?

CAPRIGLIONE: First of all, absolutely this is optional. It's 100 percent optional. You don't even have to get one. It's not allowed in certain circumstances, so that's step one. In step two, the privacy rules that I imagine DPS and the department will have will not allow—in the same way that the physical cards don't. When you use a driver's license, it's not the government necessarily that's keeping track of those purchases. But what you really have to worry about is if those commercial enterprises themselves try and sell that information elsewhere. And I believe that doing this digitally provides actually more protections. We passed HB 4 last session, which some of this data would also be covered under. And so because of what we did last session, I think that the consumers' rights and the privacy rights that we established before would also come into play in a lot of this.

CSHB 2516 ON SECOND READING

(by Guillen, Dean, Wharton, Johnson, Buckley, et al.)

CSHB 2516, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the eligibility of certain individuals younger than 65 years of age to purchase Medicare supplement benefit plans.

HB 2516 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE GUILLEN: This bill is about fairness, dignity, and responsible policy. Texans under 65 who qualify for Medicare because of ALS or end-stage renal disease didn't ask for their conditions, and they deserve a fair shot at the same protections we give those qualifying for Medicare by virtue of their age. Right now, while these individuals technically qualify for Medicare plans due to their condition, many are priced out. Some premiums cost as much as $1,700 a month or even more, compared to individuals above 65 who pay as little as $100. That's not a market, and that is not access. That's a cliff that they're jumping from. HB 2516 simply says if you offer Medicare plans to seniors, then offer them to eligible Texans under 65 with these debilitating, and often terminal, conditions at fair rates with protections during enrollment. We already ask these patients to pay 20 percent of every bill, uncapped. That can mean $18,000 a year or more. This bill does not give these individuals a free ride. It softens the financial blow they suffer due to their medical condition. It allows them to live and die in dignity and not in poverty.

Amendment No. 1

Representative Dean offered the following amendment to CSHB 2516:

Amend CSHB 2516 (house committee report) as follows:

(1) Strike page 3, line 18.

(2) Add the following appropriately numbered SECTIONS to the bill and renumber the SECTIONS of the bill accordingly:

SECTION _____. This Act shall be known as the Chris Larkin ALS Act.

SECTION _____. This Act takes effect immediately if it receives a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house, as provided by Section 39, Article III, Texas Constitution. If this Act does not receive the vote necessary for immediate effect, this Act takes effect September 1, 2025.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE DEAN: This amendment simply names this act the Chris Larkin ALS Act and is acceptable to the author.

Amendment No. 1 was adopted.

HB 2516 - REMARKS

DEAN: Members, give me an opportunity. All y'all know me. I've been here five terms. You don't see me at the back mic. You don't really see me at the front mic either unless it's a bill. There's been a lot of misinformation about exactly what this bill is about. On April 16, the Insurance Committee had a hearing. And I have to say that in my years here on every committee, my 17 years on the city council, and 10 as a mayor, I've never experienced a more humbling and difficult hearing than what we experienced that day.

Like many of you, I think I didn't really understand ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease. It is an unbelievable, debilitating disease that can come upon somebody that today is perfectly healthy and tomorrow they're stricken with this dreadful, dreadful disease. The disease basically attacks their nervous system, and their muscular system. Their brain is very much intact. Chris Larkin came to testify, and when I called him as a witness, I didn't see him. He actually came in on a type of wheelchair where he was almost in a vertical position. I didn't see him. I called him a second time, and I was getting ready to show as he registered testimony, and they said, "No, he's there." We had to move the microphone down so this gentleman could try to talk to us. He immediately would appear to me to be crying out for help, but basically he was trying to tell us that he was just emotional. He really wasn't crying. And when I tell you that the entire committee room was in tears because we saw him—what we thought to be crying—asking for our help. It was unbelievable.

About 1,800 Texans are afflicted and fall into this particular Medigap. And that's what we're trying to address. Medications that they're needing do not cure the disease. I'm happy to mention that in talking to Dean Craddick, his dementia bill does include the ALS study in looking for the cure in that bill. But today there is no cure. Their life expectancy is roughly five years. The only thing we're trying to do is give these 1,800 Texans the ability to at least live a better quality of life, which is not great, but it's still a better quality of life for the little time that they have on this earth. This isn't a republican or a democratic bill. This is a bill about compassion. Are we, as members of this body—do we have compassion for these 1,800 Texans that so need our help? So I would sure appreciate it—I've had a couple of the conservative groups I talked to oppose, and I clearly asked them, "So explain to me what you oppose," and they couldn't do it. But this is a bill where I believe that we, as members of this house—there's times when we should be compassionate about our fellow man. I would greatly appreciate if you would support Representative Guillen's bill.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHNSON: I am really proud to tell you that Chris Larkin is actually my brother-in-law. He has been my big brother for decades. Over six feet tall, a former football player at Texas A&M—a life-long, proud Aggie—and always one of the strongest men in our world. It was a few years ago that he started to get this diagnosis, and it took a long amount of time to finally get it to where it is. I will tell you that this man—who has always been a source of strength, intelligence, wit, wisdom, and humor—has now turned into one of the greatest uncles for my nephews. When he sits with these young men who are in their early 20s, he knows how important it is in these moments to share with them the future that will come.

He came to Austin to advocate when he and my sister tried to look for health care coverage in this gap of life of a young man that is aging rapidly because of a disease that is uncontrollable. It can be treated, and it can be medicated. But you do need laws like this to help those folks that are truly in that gap. I will tell you that we always think about policy, and we think about taking away childhood innocence. And what I think about here is the dignity of your golden years—the wisdom of a man and a time of his life where he truly can speak to us—and speak volumes. Chairman Dean, as you said, when he got to the committee, he couldn't speak like he used to. And to me, it means everything that in that phase of his life, he would be willing to put himself in front of a camera, in front of the testimony, and show the world what this debilitating disease can do. What our vote and our advocacy can do for those that may suffer this in the future.

So Ms. T, thank you for always advocating for policies like this. Speaker Craddick, I know you also talked to my brother-in-law. Pat Curry, you also spent time with him. Of course, Chairman Dean. And of course, Chairman Guillen. Thank you for truly turning the Texas House into something special.

GUILLEN: This bill is about dignity for those who need it the most. The least we can do today is to give them that dignity in their remaining life and in their final moments.

CSHB 2516, as amended, was passed to engrossment.

CSHB 2347 ON SECOND READING
(by Zwiener)

CSHB 2347, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the adoption of a water conservation program by certain counties.

CSHB 2347 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Cain raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2347 under Rule 8, Section 10(b), of the House Rules.

(Landgraf in the chair)

The speaker overruled the point of order, announcing his decision to the house as follows:

Mr. Cain raises a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2347 under Rule 8, Section 10(b), on the grounds that the bill is impermissibly limited in application to one or more political subdivisions by means of artificial devices.

The bill is limited to counties with a population greater than 230,000, located wholly or partly within the Hill Country Priority Groundwater Management Area, and adjacent to a county with a population greater than one million. The bracket is not closed, and indeed the bill author demonstrated that there is at least one county that is likely to soon grow into the bracket. In addition, the purpose of the bill is to protect groundwater supply in fast-growing suburban areas where there is a uniquely fragile water ecosystem. Each element of the bracket is related to this purpose. See 80 H. Jour. 3046-3047 (2007).

Accordingly, the point of order is respectfully overruled.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE GRANTED

The following members were granted leaves of absence temporarily for today to attend a meeting of the Committee on Calendars:

CSHB 2347 - (consideration continued)CSHB 2347 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Cain raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2347 under Rule 4, Section 32(c)(1), of the House Rules.

(Speaker in the chair)

The speaker sustained the point of order, announcing his decision to the house as follows:

Mr. Cain raises a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2347 under Rule 4, Section 32(c)(1), on the grounds that the background and purpose statement in the bill analysis is substantially or materially misleading.

The background and purpose statement states that the 2022 State Water Plan indicates that 29 percent of recommended water management strategies by the year 2070 will come from municipal conservation. Mr. Cain pointed to two pages in the plan that indicate the cited percentage represents all sources of conservation, not just conservation by municipalities. The inaccuracy is materially misleading. See 81 H. Jour. 2322-2323 (2009).

Accordingly, the point of order is well-taken and sustained.

CSHB 2347 was returned to the Committee on Natural Resources.

CSHB 113 ON SECOND READING
(by Vasut, Cain, Leach, Hayes, Schofield, et al.)

CSHB 113, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to statutory construction, including restrictions on the use of certain aids to construction.

CSHB 113 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Wu raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 113 under Rule 4, Section 40, and Rule 11, Section 2, of the House Rules. The speaker sustained the point of order, announcing his decision to the house as follows:

Mr. Wu raises a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 113 under Rule 4, Section 40, and Rule 11, Section 2, on the grounds that the committee substitute is not germane.

The introduced bill stated that a court is "not required" to give deference to construction of statutes by state agencies. This, in effect, saved the discretion given to courts under current law with respect to deference to administrative constructions by state agencies under Section 311.023, Government Code, which is repealed by the bill. The committee substitute, by contrast, changes this saved current law by prohibiting deference by courts to state agencies. The committee substitute impermissibly negates the introduced version's continuation of the discretion courts currently enjoy. See 88 H. Jour. 3775 (2023).

Accordingly, the point of order is well-taken and sustained. Pursuant to Rule 4, Section 41, the bill is returned to the Committee on Calendars.

CSHB 113 was returned to the Committee on Calendars.
