Members, as we approach the remainder of our end-of-session deadlines and after a review of yesterday's proceedings and relevant house practice and precedent by the parliamentarian, I'd like to advise members of the rules and procedures governing the raising of points of order and debate. A point of order on a bill can be raised at any time when a bill is before the house, including when an amendment is pending. Moving passage on a bill during your opening layout does not cut off the ability of another member to raise a point of order or to speak on the bill.

HB 1876 ON THIRD READING
(by Tepper and J. Lopez)

HB 1876, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the establishment of a career and technical education reporting grant program by the Texas Education Agency.

HB 1876 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE BRYANT: I have just a quick clarification question. The bill provides for grants for—the purpose is stated in the bill, but the language says grants to independent school districts and charter schools. I just want to know from you—I don't think it's your intent, but I'd just like to get a clarifying statement here. You are not going to be giving the same sized grant to a school district with thousands of students as you give to an individual charter school that may have hundreds?

REPRESENTATIVE TEPPER: You know, sir, that's a good question. I doubt it. It doesn't state specifically in the bill—at least I don't believe it does—but this will be parsed out by the Texas Education Agency. I doubt they'll be looking to just haphazardly send—and the program also has to be audited and overseen by TEA, so they'll be responsible for the funds.

BRYANT: Is it your intent as the author that a school district with thousands of students get the same sized grant that an individual charter school with hundreds gets?

TEPPER: That is not the intent.

HJR 218 ON THIRD READING (by Y. Davis)

HJR 218, A joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to authorize the use of money from the Texas energy fund for energy efficiency projects conducted to benefit retail electric customers.

HJR 218 was read third time on May 14, postponed until 5 p.m. May 14, postponed until May 15, and was again postponed until 9 a.m. today.

HJR 218 - MOTION TO LAY ON THE TABLE SUBJECT TO CALL

Representative Y. Davis moved to lay HJR 218 on the table subject to call.

The motion was withdrawn.

HJR 218 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE Y. DAVIS: I am happy to introduce HJR 218 to you again. Again, this is an effort to broaden our commitment to energy efficiency. Why does this matter? Because it's not just more power; it's efficient power. It lowers and reduces power during the peak hours. It will reduce the stress on our grids, and it will save money for Texas families. This is a win for reliability, but it's also a win for citizens of the State of Texas. I think it's important that we realize policy has to be before politics. This is an opportunity for us to bring our citizens into being part of the solution as we talk about the grid and reliability and the stress that families are having. Maybe at some point we will realize—and I hope during this session—we will introduce the notion of talking about making a difference for people, as well as the state, with good policy, and not about politics.

Let me tell you what I'm talking about. We endure all of these discussions about the things that we need in Texas. As a new member on State Affairs, after a number of hearings, I realized no one talked about people. They didn't talk about the consumer, and they didn't talk about how people could participate in this process—it was all about the industry. We have got to somehow rephrase the conversation around not just the industry but the people that we are here to serve. I think it's a coalition—it's a relationship that we have forgotten—that this ought to be government for and by the people, as well as the industry.

So I bring HJR 218 to you to look at—how do we get back to connecting policy with people? This is an opportunity. The bill only suggests that we allow citizens to participate in an election to be part of the solution. We have put potentially $10 billion in a fund set aside for the industry to use. This—HJR 218—would allow us to take $1 billion for the citizens to make a decision about being part of the solution. Weatherization, new windows—all of the things that families struggle with have been issues. They can take funds that are already made available to deal with these issues.

REPRESENTATIVE TURNER: Thank you, Representative Davis. I know we discussed this, your very important HJR, the other day. And just to emphasize—these are funds that have already been approved by the legislature and by the voters two years ago, is that right?

Y. DAVIS: That's correct.

TURNER: And these are funds that, by and large, have not yet been expended in the Texas Energy Fund, and you're trying to open this fund up to our constituents. Is that right?

Y. DAVIS: That's correct. I'm not trying to take away or change what the fund can be used for. It is just my belief that citizens can participate in the solution as we try to look for a more reliable and secure grid system.

TURNER: That's right. Your HJR will have the ability to help fund the new generation projects in Texas but also allow our constituents to receive funds to help weatherize their homes or make their homes more energy efficient and save them money and save electricity at the same time—to help make our grid more reliable. Is that right?

Y. DAVIS: That's correct. I think we sometimes forget our participation ought to involve citizens also being a part of the solution to the issues for Texas. We all care about Texas, and it will require us to invest in ownership of this challenge to make our grid more safe and more reliable.

TURNER: Well, I think if we pass this today, our constituents—all of our constituents—are going to thank us for doing so.

Y. DAVIS: I think this is a win for the people by having this opportunity to be part of our solution. Again, I offer this, and I understand this environment more than anyone, unfortunately. I don't think I can get 100 votes in here, because I don't think anybody pays attention to policy anymore. I think everybody talks about things about their respective bills, but I don't think they think about Texas—and this is really about Texas. This isn't about your campaign, my campaign, your constituents, my constituents—this is about Texas. How do we deal with making Texas stronger, and how do we encourage our citizens to be a part of it?

We've set aside $10 billion—potentially $10 billion, for sure $5 billion—that the voters approved to do just this. This allows us to let citizens to participate in a more involved manner. So I offer this, but I'm a realist. I've been trying to get over my thought that this ought to be about us working together—that isn't happening. That isn't happening. I've gotten over the fact that we don't have the decorum and the commitment to this process and in this chamber like it had been in the past. I get that now. I'm not comfortable with it; I don't want to validate it, but I have to acknowledge it. When I see what we're doing here and when I see that we can bring legitimate discussions on issues that will make a difference for Texans and it is not respected, I don't know where we go from here. We can talk about being this great state we want to be, but if we don't act on that, we don't get there.

You know, I want to offer this resolution because I think it's the key to people reinvesting in our government, but I don't think that we get there. It's my thought that I'm going to pull this resolution down. I'll bring this back, and hopefully we become more mature and more committed to a greater Texas and get more people involved in being a part of a constructive conversation instead of a political conversation.

REPRESENTATIVE J. JONES: Representative Davis, a question. To make sure that everyone here understands what this is—there's currently $10 billion already appropriated for what?

Y. DAVIS: To create a more efficient, reliable, secure grid system. And we do that not just by creating more power, but we do that by being smart about power. We do that by helping homeowners come up with ways to secure their homes with lower rates of weatherization, windows—they even have programs that they can use on their houses to lower rates. It's all available to citizens, but right now only the corporations can use this money.

J. JONES: Representative Davis, correct me if I'm wrong because I just want to make sure that I'm voting on the right things. Right now, there's already $10 billion appropriated for the State of Texas to try to figure out how to make the grid more reliable. Is that a true statement?

Y. DAVIS: That's a true statement.

J. JONES: And the majority of that $10 billion, as it is right now, goes to corporations to figure out how to make the grid system more reliable. Is that accurate?

Y. DAVIS: What happens is the PUC has developed a program—we've got money set aside that companies can get grants and loans—or loans to provide more power, build new generators and transmission systems—but the citizens—this is an opportunity to allow our citizens to utilize those funds to do what they can for energy efficiency and reliability. And that's the goal of this: to allow citizens access to the resources that we thought would be helpful and available for an industry to use but also for citizens to use.

J. JONES: So what you're saying is this: Of the $10 billion that is already appropriated for companies to try to figure out how to create a more reliable grid, you're simply asking us to take $1 billion of that $10 billion to allow citizens to figure out how to make their homes more reliable so that they don't drain as much from the grid. Is that accurate?

Y. DAVIS: That is correct.

REPRESENTATIVE MANUEL: Representative Davis, I know I was a staffer then, but I'm going to ask—can you remind this body what happened in the last winter storm we had in 2021 and why we really wanted to boost up the system?

Y. DAVIS: I will tell you that what we've seen is things are changing, and people lost their homes. They didn't have utilities; they didn't have power—the gamut. We lost lives during this time. We're better than that. Texas can do better. And to not look at all avenues to make a difference—including involving citizens so they can do things for their homes and be part of the change to protect Texas—that's all we're talking about. How do we do that without involving the citizens that we're here to protect in the state we want to improve? If you leave that component out, you've just got the industry doing it. We believe, as Texans, that we ought to be part of the solution. This will force an election to be held so that residents in their respective communities can look at ways to do this. I don't know how we think we're governing, but we leave people behind. They're part of the solution. It takes us all working together. And I think, when we talk about an HJR that would need 100 votes—quite frankly, I don't think people are committed to that. I think they're waiting for people—I mean, I don't think this body is committed to that. Let me say that. That's probably more accurate. I don't think the body understands the value of involving the community—the outside communities—in solutions for the State of Texas. And that's my challenge—to say to folks, "If we do anything, we ought to take people with us as we grow and build Texas."

MANUEL: I appreciate that, and I appreciate this HJR because I know we all got phone calls after that storm. It affected us from north, south, and the center—all over Texas. People were asking for exactly what you are offering right here in this body. When people lost loved ones and they didn't know if they were going to have food and people didn't have a place to stay, we promised them we were going to fix our grid. I commend you for trying to do what the voters have asked us—what Texans have asked us—to do. I appreciate you.

REPRESENTATIVE HAYES: As I understand from reading your joint resolution, the current Constitution already has a provision that there will be loans and grants. It says in the Constitution: "necessary to ensure the reliability or adequacy of an electric power grid in this state." Am I reading that correctly?

Y. DAVIS: That's correct, but it doesn't allow the citizens to use those funds. The constitutional amendment that was passed is for corporations to use those funds. It did not give authorization for citizens to use it. And my HJR just allows for citizens to also access those funds so that they can do what their respective locations and homes can to assist in achieving this goal. That's the only difference.

HAYES: So I do see here, up earlier in the constitutional amendment, it says, "to provide loans and grants to any entity," and that's the point you're making. This has to go to an entity, not individuals?

Y. DAVIS: Not individuals—that's the difference.

HAYES: Why don't we add "any entity or individual" up there? Because the language that you're adding says, "and to finance energy efficiency projects conducted to benefit retail electric customers." It doesn't say to be used by a customer; it says to benefit retail electric customers. So I'm wondering if the language accomplishes the objective that you're seeking to undertake?

Y. DAVIS: Sir, let me just mention that at this point that is my challenge. Trying to get us to understand that the customers—retail customers—the citizens, not the entities, are who we're trying to get engaged in this. I don't get to just change that Constitution. I mean, that's already passed through the companies. We're just trying to make sure we can do it for the residents and the retail customers, who are going to be the beneficiaries of these grants and loans, by having a more secure system. Again, I get that everybody is comfortable with doing it one way. I just happen to believe that bringing citizens into the formula is essential and beneficial.

REPRESENTATIVE GOODWIN: Members, I think that this is such an important issue—that we not only add power through all sorts of different means, but through conservation. That makes our grid more resilient and more reliable at a time when we have AI and data centers that are calling for more energy, and we have more people moving to the state. What could happen if her bill passes is that we put this up to a vote by the people. I understand that with the number of members having left for important business in their districts right now, it may be very difficult to get the votes that are needed to get to 100 so that we can put it up to a vote by the people. But I think it's important for our constituents back home to see who is willing—which of their representatives is willing to put this up to a vote so that they can participate in and so that they can know that they have some ability to do things like put solar panels on their homes and make their homes more weather-resilient.

Back in 2007, I put solar panels on my home. It was Austin Energy that had a program providing a rebate that made that something we could do very inexpensively. I envision that this bill, should it pass, would allow for some of the $10 billion to be used for programs like that, that our energy providers could sponsor. That's why I think it's really important for us to take this vote, and I hope that you will vote for this so that your constituents can vote in November to add this as an option.
