(Bonnen in the chair)

The invocation was offered by Reverend Patrick Payton, senior pastor, Stonegate Fellowship Church, Midland, as follows:

Heavenly Father, I humbly beseech your ear this Friday morning recognizing that according to Psalm 116 you say that you incline your ear to those that call upon you. We recognize that for you to incline your majestic ear makes this place holy and hallowed ground, not because of the history and grandeur of this majestic hall, but due to the fact that you are the one and only holy and matchless creator and king of the universe and all that it contains. Indeed your presence changes our reality.

This morning we remind ourselves that the word of God informs us that these men and women gathered in this great hall today stand here because you have ordained it; they may have sought office but it is you that establishes leadership. The apostle Paul tells us in the book of Romans that these men and women are established by you and minister for you in their places of authority. I ask, in and by the matchless name of Jesus, that these men and women serve in light of the high calling and purpose of God on their lives.

As the business of the great State of Texas is carried out this day, may these leaders remember their charge, also given to us by your word, the Holy Scriptures. We have been told by the prophet Micah that we are to seek justice. May this great body of leaders ordained by you do all that is in their power to protect, defend, and provide for all that is just. May they never waver in calling that which is evil—evil, and that which is good—good. May they defend the justice due to those who expect it and those who do not, and may they fight for justice for those yet to be born, those closest to death's door, and all categories in between.

May this great body of leaders also seek from your hand the gift of wisdom as spoken of by the writers of both Proverbs and the book of James. May these leaders remember that the beginning of wisdom and understanding is the fear of the Lord. May they remember that you told us through your word that if we would ask for wisdom and not doubt, you promise to give liberally. May the proceedings of this body take place with the gift of Godly wisdom and understanding.

Finally, as we draw our words to you into conclusion we thank you for the greatest act of grace, love, and justice known to man. We thank you that even though the Bible informs us that all men have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God and are doomed to eternal separation from you because of sin, that you were and are gracious, loving, and just and provided for our rescue. We thank you that you loved us so much that you gave your only son, Jesus, to die on a cross, then to be buried only then to be resurrected so that those who believe in the Lord, Jesus Christ, and confess him as Lord and Savior may not perish but have eternal life. For you have said in your word, "This is life . . . that men might know Jesus."

Heavenly Father, in all that is done this day and all that is said may we remember that what we do for our fellow Texans, or any other member of this great state and or union of states, is to be in accordance with your command to love and care for one another and in accordance with your calling on the lives of these leaders. Nevertheless, may this great body of leaders always remember that what is done for eternity is what will last, indeed that which affects and changes the souls of men and women. We ask all of these things in and by the only name given by God under heaven by which men and women must be saved, the only name of Jesus. Amen.

The speaker led the house in the pledges of allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.
