The speaker recognized Representative E. Thompson who introduced Reverend Don Anderson, senior minister, Alvin Church of Christ, Alvin, who offered the invocation as follows:

Father God, hallowed be thy great and holy name. What a privilege it is to pause and approach your throne of grace, seeking your blessing on behalf of these men and women who fill the seats of this wonderful institution of government. Father, what a blessing it is to live within a country and state where free will is not only allowed but also encouraged, where we as people are free to make choices to seek to govern ourselves in a peaceful and orderly manner. What a privilege it is to be able to offer our differing thoughts and opinions, to discuss and debate the various issues of life that we deem important in a peaceful and unified manner for the good of all who make up the State of Texas.

Father, the men and women who carry the burden of responsibility in this house chamber do so as servants of the people of this state. They represent the affluent and the poorest of the poor. They speak for the able-bodied and the disabled. They represent people who are educated and those who are not, those who strive for a better way of life for themselves and for others, and those who cannot even comprehend what a better way of life is all about. These representatives carry the task of being here for those who can't and won't speak for themselves, and they cast their votes in an effort to continue to make laws that will provide a future for all those who presently live here, for those who will come to Texas in the future, and those who are yet to be born and will one day live in this wonderful land called Texas.

Father, may you grant the members of this house of representatives an extra measure of wisdom. Will you increase their ability to be discerning? As they work, may they hear the voices of the people who make up their respective districts, may they grasp the full weight of the responsibilities that have been entrusted to them, and may they know in their hearts that the greatest one among them each day is not the one who speaks the loudest, longest, or the most authoritatively, but the one who seeks to serve, the one who sees themselves as the least among those whom they are privileged to represent in this fine institution of government.

Father, I thank you for this day, and I ask you to bless it abundantly. May the proceedings that come before this house chamber be handled with honor, dignity, and selflessness. May you guide the hearts and minds of those who speak. Will you open the ears of those who listen that they may hear with clarity and respect, and may there be a spirit of humility among the members of this house as they consider the business of the State of Texas? For I pray this blessing upon these men and women, and I ask it in the name of my Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.

The speaker recognized Representative Frank who led the house in the pledges of allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.
