Lord, you were in the Tabernacle of Moses. You were in the Temple of Solomon. And you are in this Capitol, in this house today, and in our lives as believers. We welcome and acknowledge your presence.

We thank you for Speaker Straus, his wife, and his family. We thank you for his leadership. We are grateful for every member of this house, their families, and every member of each staff. Our prayer today is that each would continue to receive your guidance, your wisdom, and your help for the challenging decisions of this session.

We pray, Lord, that there would be a coming together regardless of party, regardless of ideology, and that the members of this house would find common ground and have unity for the betterment and future of this great state. For where there is unity, there you command the blessing. Today, Lord, give them strength and refreshing and renewal that will carry them in the weeks and months to come. Give all of us today revelation of your love, your grace, your forgiveness, and we invite you to draw us to your goodness.

Again, we acknowledge your presence in this place, in our lives, and in our day. We enter this day with thanksgiving in our hearts for all you have done and will do for us and this great state. We thank you for Texas. We bless you. We love you because you first loved us. In your name, we pray. Amen.
