Absent — Allison.

The invocation was offered by Tom Allen, pastor, Crosspoint Church, Pearland, as follows:

Heavenly Father, we'd like to begin today with saying thank you. Thank you that we are blessed to live in the greatest nation on this planet. Let us never forget that nor take it for granted, and let us be ever vigilant to see that its greatest days are still ahead and not simply memories of the past. But Father, remind us that we are doubly blessed to reside in the greatest state in the greatest nation on this planet. By the grace of God, we get to call ourselves Americans and Texans. I thank you for these men and women assembled here to give guidance and direction to this state we love and cherish. Remind them that what they oversee did not just happen. It was bought with the blood of heroes who had the vision of something great but also had the commitment to pay whatever price was necessary for us to live in this great experiment we call freedom. Let them handle it with the fragility it demands and deserves. I pray that you would remind them today that they exist here to represent me and millions of others like me who have entrusted them with our freedom, our hopes, our dreams, and our futures—not only ours but the generations who will follow us. I ask you to give them the wisdom—wisdom from on high, wisdom that only you can give, wisdom they look to you for—that is necessary to ensure that Texas remains the boldest and grandest and that it would have the ability to continue the legacy of withstanding every test. Father, let them take seriously their role as guardians of this empire wide and glorious, which indeed stands supremely blessed.

Father, on that note, remind us all that Texas is Texas because we stand supremely blessed. And that you, God, are the supreme one in our supreme blessedness. If we forget anything, let it not be that. God, bless this thing we call Texas, and keep it great and strong, that we may grow in power and in worth throughout the ages long. God bless Texas, and God make Texas a blessing. In Jesus' name. Amen.

The chair recognized Representative Sherman who led the house in the pledges of allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.
