The invocation was offered by Olus Holder, executive pastor, Fallbrook Church, Houston, as follows:

Let us pray. Heavenly Father, we give you praise this morning, and we thank you for the marvelous gift of life. You know these leaders have gathered today as part of their God-given ministry to lead and make decisions for the great State of Texas. Father, they have to address some complex and unprecedented challenges, and I ask that you give them wisdom to guide us through the difficult days ahead. Father, you have entrusted the lives of millions of Texans in their hands, and I pray that you continue to use them to keep the great State of Texas as the greatest state in the United States of America. My final request is to bless Texas as you bless the United States. I present this prayer today in Jesus’ name. Amen.

HJR 143 ON SECOND READING
(by G. Bonnen)

HJR 143, A joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to vest the power to invest and manage certain public funds in certain officers, boards, and entities.

HJR 143 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT
REPRESENTATIVE C. TURNER: I was listening to your layout. I just want to clarify a couple of things in terms of the intent of the bill—the impact of the HJR, rather. You said that the intent is for the legislature to be able to make changes to the governance of various funds through statutory means, i.e., passing a house bill or a senate bill?
G. BONNEN: That's correct.
C. TURNER: Okay, so right now that is not an option for the legislature. Is that correct?
G. BONNEN: Well, it is for some funds that are constitutionally authorized but not for all. So for example, the TRS Pension Trust Fund is constitutionally authorized but their governance is actually set in statute. However, we have other funds that are authorized in the Constitution and their governance is in the Constitution. So if you wanted to change their governance structure, you would have to amend the State Constitution. This HJR would allow us to change that through statute or general law.
C. TURNER: Okay. So as I understand it then, you just mentioned TRS and also the Employee Retirement System is already—the governance structure is defined in statute currently?
G. BONNEN: That is correct.
C. TURNER: So this HJR does not affect them at all?
G. BONNEN: Correct. It has no bearing on them. Actually, it brings other constitutionally authorized funds into alignment with the way we currently manage the TRS Pension Trust and ERS Pension Trust Funds.
C. TURNER: Okay, and does the HJR authorize the legislature to make changes to just the governance or also the management of the funds?
G. BONNEN: To the governance—and, you know, typically we don't manage, right? So we establish the board that is to oversee the assets. The board then hires, typically, an executive director and is responsible for overseeing the execution of the strategy which would include the actual management of the assets that are entrusted to that board.

C. TURNER: And is it correct that the Permanent University Fund is exempted?
G. BONNEN: That is correct. It is the only item that is exempted.

C. TURNER: Is there a reason for exempting them?
G. BONNEN: I think that historically that has functioned extremely well and has served the state well, and that's the one thing that we've chosen to exclude from this HJR.

C. TURNER: Understood, okay. And then, given that we're only dealing with the governance of the fund, this in no way authorizes the legislature to go in and, you know, say, pass a bill to select specific managers of funds, right? That power still rests with the governing body of the various funds. Is that right?
G. BONNEN: Yes, so it's my view that it's not good practice for the legislature to set into statute such things.

C. TURNER: I would agree. And this is only state funds so this has no bearing on any local pension funds, is that correct?
G. BONNEN: That's correct.

C. TURNER: So no municipal police or firefighter funds, anything like that, would be covered by this HJR?
G. BONNEN: To my knowledge none would be affected by this. It would only be constitutionally authorized funds—State Constitution.

C. TURNER: So it only affects funds that are authorized by the Texas Constitution?
G. BONNEN: Correct.

C. TURNER: So that would be things like the SWIFT, the Water Fund—
G. BONNEN: That's right.

C. TURNER: Is there a list of the funds that are affected?
G. BONNEN: I have a list. I think there are 11 such funds. I can tell you what they are if you'd like.

C. TURNER: If you have it handy.
G. BONNEN: Veterans' Land Fund, Veterans' Assistance Fund, the TWDB Water Development Funds I and II, the State Water Implementation Fund, the State Water Implementation Revenue Fund, the Texas Parks Development Fund, the Texas Mobility Fund, the Texas Rail Relocation and Improvement Fund, the State Highway Fund, the Farm and Ranch Loan Security Fund, and the Permanent School Fund.
C. TURNER: I never knew we had so many funds. Thank you, Representative Bonnen, for clarifying that.

(by Larson)

HB 724, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the authorization by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality of the discharge, diversion, and transfer or other reuse of treated brackish groundwater and return flows derived from treated brackish groundwater.

HB 724 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE ZWIENER: Chairman Larson, I'd like to ask you a couple of questions related to legislative intent. Is the intent of your bill to encourage the treatment and use of brackish groundwater by automatically authorizing the issuance of so-called bed and banks permits?

REPRESENTATIVE LARSON: It is.

ZWIENER: And what if the groundwater that is being treated for a bed and banks permit currently contributes to streamflow through streams and seepage? Could your bill reduce streamflow by authorizing an automatic authorization?

LARSON: Okay, go through that question again?

ZWIENER: What if the groundwater that is being treated for the bed and banks permit currently contributes to streamflow through seepage? Could your bill end up reducing streamflow in that case?

LARSON: No, I don't see that.

ZWIENER: And so is the intent of your bill to never result in a decrease in overall streamflow?

LARSON: No, that's not the intent at all. All we're trying to do is augment the amount of water available in each of the basins. This would bring new water introduced by a municipality or whoever develops a desalination plant.

ZWIENER: Okay, so if a municipal wastewater treatment plant contains just a little bit of brackish groundwater, your intent is not that the entire return flow could automatically get approval from TCEQ?

LARSON: It's stated clearly in the bill. Treated brackish groundwater is the focus. It's not the wastewater coming out of the wastewater treatment plants.

HB 724 was passed to engrossment.

Amendment No. 1 - Point of Order

Representative Stickland raised a point of order against further consideration of Amendment No. 1 under Rule 11, Section 2, of the House Rules. The point of order was overruled and the speaker submitted the following ruling:

RULING BY THE SPEAKER
on Amendment No. 1 to House Bill 680

Announced in the House on April 23, 2019
(Paddie in the chair)

Representative Stickland raises a point of order against further consideration of the Deshotel Amendment to HB 680 under Rule 11, Section 2, of the House Rules on the grounds that the amendment is not germane.

As reported from committee, the bill authorizes local workforce development boards statewide to contract with certain child care providers in the board's operating area to provide subsidized child care under certain specified conditions. The amendment narrows the scope of this authorization to permit the Texas Workforce Commission to establish a pilot program to accomplish the same purpose. In the opinion of the Chair, the amendment is on the same subject as the bill and is, therefore, germane.

Accordingly, the point of order is respectfully overruled.

CSHB 2872, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the collection, remittance, and administration of certain taxes on motor vehicles rented through a marketplace rental provider.

CSHB 2872 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Dutton raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2872 under Rule 4, Section 32(c)(1), Rule 4, Section 32(c)(2), and Rule 4, Section 32(c)(5), of the House Rules on the grounds that the Background and Purpose and Analysis sections of the bill analysis are inaccurate and substantially and materially misleading and the comparison of the original to the substitute in the bill analysis omits several substantial differences.

The point of order was withdrawn.

Representative Burrows moved to postpone consideration of CSHB 2872 until the end of today's calendar.

The motion prevailed.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

CSHB 1399 ON SECOND READING
(by Smith, Phelan, and Moody)

CSHB 1399, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the creation and storage of DNA records for a person arrested for certain felony offenses.

CSHB 1399 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Canales raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 1399 under Rule 4, Section 32(c)(5), of the House Rules on the grounds that the statement of substantial differences between the committee substitute and the original bill does not adequately describe the substantial differences.

(Goldman in the chair)

The point of order was withdrawn.

CSHB 1399 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE SMITH: Mr. Speaker, members, thank you so much for your patience. In 2001, Texas passed the first DNA collection law in the country. Since that time and despite great advancements in DNA technology, Texas' DNA collection laws have remained largely unchanged. Texas has fallen behind a majority of states that allow for the collection of DNA upon arrest for certain offenses. Currently, 18 states have enacted legislation that requires DNA to be taken at the time of arrest for all felonies. An additional 13 states require DNA to be taken at the time of arrest for certain felonies. Our neighboring states—New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana—all require DNA to be taken at the time of arrest for all felony offenses. Texas currently requires the collection of DNA upon indictment for certain offenses and upon arrest in cases where there has been a previous conviction for certain offenses. CSHB 1399 would provide for the collection of DNA upon a certain limited number of offenses, primarily for those that are assaultive in nature. The bill would bring Texas law more in line with the majority of other states.

What I will tell you is that this legislation is entitled the Krystal Jean Baker Act. Krystal Jean was a little 13-year-old girl who was abducted, sexually assaulted, and strangled—and this is important—on March 5, 1996. DNA evidence was collected at the time, but the case remained unsolved until Kevin Smith was arrested in Louisiana on a drug charge in 2010. His DNA was sampled at the time of the arrest, and he eventually pleaded guilty to her murder. He also was a suspected serial killer. So what we need to do is we need to move Texas into the realm where we start solving these crimes. This bill also exonerates those who were wrongfully accused, and that’s something to know. At this point, I would move passage.

REPRESENTATIVE ISRAEL: Representative Smith, watching us today—all kidding aside, I recognize this is your first bill, but I have a lot of respect for you for bringing this bill up. And I know that there’s a lot of people watching us today who have lost loved ones and who are counting on us to do the right thing today. Is that correct?

SMITH: That’s correct.

ISRAEL: And in terms of the match, would you speak—I think it might be helpful if you spoke a little bit to the fact that through accuracy and using science we do something good in regard to getting harmful people off the street.

SMITH: That's right. It's very restricted. What we're talking about is there are three billion markers on one human genome, and this technology that we already use in Texas provides for gathering 20 of those three billion. Only one of them has anything to do with what you might consider something that could be used for discrimination, and that is sex. The other 19 are simply place markers in the human genome. What's important about that is that those place markers are specific to the individual, just like a fingerprint. So they don't have anything to do with race, ethnicity, and that sort of thing. The other thing is, under Texas law and under my bill, if you are acquitted or if the case is dismissed against you, then it's expunged. It's removed from the CODIS federal data bank, and it's no more.

ISRAEL: That's a good point. The results are not kept in perpetuity. They're kept just for the purposes of catching people who have done bad things that, were it not for a simple swab, we would not have found out about.

SMITH: Absolutely. Section 411 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure makes it very clear what the purposes of that particular data bank are, what our data bank is used for here in Texas, and what CODIS is used for. And it's not for anything other than to help victims and exonerate the wrongfully accused.

ISRAEL: And there's a number of states that have been doing this for some time, is that correct?

SMITH: That's correct—18.

ISRAEL: And I also recall it was your predecessor, Representative Phillips, who feels strongly about this, and I appreciate you carrying this forward with his energy in mind as well.

SMITH: Well, absolutely, I'm glad to. Thank you.

REPRESENTATIVE P. KING: Thank you for bringing this bill. So are you aware of a thing called the National Automated Fingerprint Identification System?

SMITH: I am.
P. KING: And are you aware that for decades and decades anytime anyone was arrested or went through any type of criminal investigation, they fingerprinted them and stored that in local police departments?

SMITH: Absolutely.

P. KING: And are you aware that back in the '80s, somebody had the idea of, hey, if we put all these into one database nationally, then we could probably solve crimes?

SMITH: Yes, sir.

P. KING: And are you aware that in the '80s, the Texas Legislature approved joining this National Automated Fingerprint Identification System? And that we scanned in every fingerprint in every police department in the state, as did everywhere else in the country? And that all of a sudden someone who was arrested in Shreveport for public intoxication got identified as being an assailant on a sexual assault four years earlier in Lubbock? And all of a sudden someone who had committed a murder in Houston was found because they got arrested for a minor DWI in Amarillo?

SMITH: Yes, sir.

P. KING: And am I correct that DNA is just simply the next step in that? That they are already collecting DNA samples when people are arrested and that this simply is the creation of the next generation of the Automated Fingerprint Identification System?

SMITH: That's right, Chairman. And what's important here is that Texas already does this to a certain extent, so we're not trying to do something that's completely revolutionary. Texas has a database, and this CODIS database is out there, and we've been using this for some time.

P. KING: And am I correct it's not testing people to find out if they're a good insurance risk; it's not testing people to find out if they're susceptible to certain diseases; it's not identifying their race or anything else? It's simply identifying just like a fingerprint did, but instead of 26 points, it's thousands of database points to make sure that it is a good identification? And a good identification saves lives, and it creates accurate court filings?

SMITH: That's right. It's 20 markers—out of three billion—that are unique but do not have discriminatory information. And we're exonerating the wrongfully accused with this, as well as convicting the guy or lady who deserves it.

P. KING: Absolutely. You're aware we've had people on death row that have been exonerated because of collected DNA evidence?

SMITH: Absolutely. I'm also aware of the fact that other states are solving our crimes for us, and that's despicable. When Oklahoma's solving our crimes, we've got a problem.

P. KING: Thank you. This is a good bill.

REPRESENTATIVE DUTTON: Obviously, one of the things that this bill does is it broadens the net of people now who we can obtain DNA from. Is that correct?
SMITH: That's correct.

DUTTON: Well, why do we stop here? Why don't we take DNA from everybody and just be done with it?

SMITH: I appreciate your sentiments, Representative Dutton. I think this approach is a very measured Texas approach. There are 18 other states in the country that take it on all felony arrests. This particular bill only pertains to the big, bad, nasty ones.

DUTTON: Right, but my worry is not so much where this bill is, but where do we stop this? Where does this—I mean, today we're doing just what you want to do. The next session we'll come back and it'll be because you can't get employment unless you give up a DNA sample.

SMITH: Oh, I'd never agree to that.

DUTTON: No, but that's where we're headed. That's where this is going, and that's what I'm afraid of.

SMITH: I appreciate you expressing your concerns about it, but that's not what we do. And there are other things that we do under Texas law and criminal jurisprudence, as you know—like bugs, like tracking devices. But we have rules, and that's what this body's for is to develop those rules. What we're doing is reinsing this in, and it's a very measured response.

DUTTON: Right, but the Supreme Court of the United States has said you can't just go breaking into everybody's house to find a burglar, for example. You can't just go trying to find a thief by telling everybody to let you in their house to go search around for a thief. And what I'm worried about is that the freedoms we enjoy become less and less with these kinds of things. You don't get your freedoms changed all at one time overnight. It always happens in a progression, and it starts with things like this.

SMITH: Well, this bill doesn't go to that extent. It's a very measured response. I will also say that in Maryland v. King, which is a United States Supreme Court Case in 2013, they came and they said that it is not an unreasonable search and seizure for DNA. It's been ruled on. It's been ruled on in a number of lower courts, and I know you know that.

DUTTON: And I understand that.

SMITH: But I think you're just expressing your concern for the future, and I get that.

DUTTON: Yes, I'm familiar with the case, but what worries me is today what's reasonable is doing what you're doing. Next year, a year after next, then we'll redefine. We'll move the bright line to what's reasonable. We'll move it to a point where we don't have any rights or we don't have any freedoms. And the problem is that in the name of catching the bad guys, we all have to give up part of our freedom to do that, and that's what I object to. I object to the fact that because somebody else does something, that means I ought to give up my rights.
Because I will tell you this, and I’ve said this before on this floor, one of the things they do before you lose certain rights is they always scare you to death. They always frighten you of something. And this is the response, I believe, to the fact that we're frightened about the bad people. Well, we ought not let the bad people dictate what happens to us good people. It's the same principle that we used when we decided to let people carry a weapon, when we decided to have CHLs. We did it because we knew there were responsible people out there who could be gun owners and do it. But we don’t do that in this sense because I'm not sure that we quite understand that taking a DNA swab and having it become a part of a registry—that may help us catch a bad guy. I agree with you.

SMITH: Or exonerate somebody.

DUTTON: I firmly agree with you, but I'm just wondering how many more of my rights am I going to have to give up for us to catch one bad guy.

SMITH: I appreciate your sentiments.

DUTTON: Okay, and have you thought about that?

SMITH: I certainly have, and that’s why it's a measured response. Eighteen other states do it for all felony arrest. There are about a total of 31 states that take it in some level. They take DNA depending on where they are. Texas has a very measured response. And the other thing is if you're acquitted or the case is dismissed, then it's expunged. It's destroyed.

DUTTON: Well, when you start talking about Texas and other states, are you aware that Texas is one of only four states in the nation that treats 17-year-olds—hello? He's not looking.

SMITH: I'm listening to you. I'm sorry.

DUTTON: My question was—you raise the issue about Texas being a part of so many other states that are doing this now. And my concern is that, for example, Texas happens to be one of four states that treats juveniles at 17 as adults for criminal responsibility, but we’ve done nothing about that. And so when you tell me that 35 other states have done something like this—is that what you're saying?

SMITH: Now, what I'm trying to understand is, are you saying that this bill is somehow going to require more criminal penalties for juveniles? Is that what I heard you say?

DUTTON: No, what I'm saying is it's requiring me to give up part of my liberties, part of my freedom.

SMITH: So if you're arrested, okay, what this does is it just takes 20 of those markers. And if you're innocent, it exonerates you quicker than otherwise. So if the DNA doesn't match up, you’re exonerated. If not, well, then there's another process for that. But a guy like you, Harold, I mean, it's not going to do anything to you. You don't have to give your DNA. You're not arrested.
DUTTON: Well, if all communities were treated equally in terms of arrest, I might agree with you. But what I'm here to represent to you is that all communities—all people living in a certain place doesn't invite that kind of response. Because what I can tell you is that in some communities this will be taken as an assault on their rights as opposed to a help in terms of catching anybody. And that's the way it'll be used, because you'll be talking about arresting people for a felony just to get their DNA.

SMITH: Again, I appreciate your sentiments, and you and I can have a conversation about that at some point.

DUTTON: All right. Well, thank you.

SMITH: But I don't think that's what's addressed here.

REPRESENTATIVE STICKLAND: You made a couple of comments that were very concerning to me, one of which was agreeing with Representative King that DNA collection and databasing is just the next step. I would like to know what you think the next step after that is going to be?

SMITH: I think we're way outside this bill. We are doing this already.

STICKLAND: Not so because, Representative Smith, when you make comments like "if you're innocent, you have nothing to worry about"—which are your words—when did you think it was okay for us to flip our justice system upside down? Do you want to live in a world where you are guilty until you prove yourself innocent?

SMITH: I think the comment was if you don't get arrested you don't have anything to worry about.

STICKLAND: But Representative, are there false arrests all the time?

SMITH: There are.

STICKLAND: There are. So I could literally be doing nothing and be arrested, and you're still going to database me under this bill, correct?

SMITH: Well, but if this case gets dismissed against you, then it's going to be expunged and destroyed.

STICKLAND: All right, if it's dismissed afterward, that means I'm put in a position where I have to prove that I am innocent because you're assuming that I'm guilty right off the gate. Correct?

SMITH: No.

STICKLAND: Are you taking my DNA and databasing it before I have been convicted?

SMITH: Yes.

STICKLAND: Okay, and then it is incumbent upon me to undo that, correct?

SMITH: So it's no different than a fingerprint.

STICKLAND: Okay, well, we can talk about fingerprints.
SMITH: Let me ask you this. Jonathan, do you have a problem with fingerprints?

STICKLAND: I do have a problem with fingerprints.

SMITH: Okay, I thought so.

STICKLAND: I have a problem in general when you tell Texans that they are guilty and have to prove themselves innocent. You are flipping our justice system and due process and everything that we've held dear for years with a bill like this.

SMITH: So I guess you don’t agree with the breath test on DWI?

STICKLAND: I think that we need to talk about this specific bill because—

SMITH: I'm trying to.

STICKLAND: Because this specific bill—there are comments that you have made that if you’re innocent, you don’t have to worry about it. There's false arrests all the time, Representative, and you're just asking me to trust government. Trust government that we're going to get rid of it if you end up proving yourself innocent. Trust government. We’re going to do this. We’re going to prevent crime. Due process, sir, privacy, and all of these things are much more dear to me, and I think to a lot of Texans, than what you’re talking about on this bill.

SMITH: I appreciate your sentiments.

STICKLAND: Let me ask you another question that you asked about. You specifically said that this was found constitutional by the Supreme Court, is that correct?

SMITH: DNA databases, I believe so, yes.

STICKLAND: And do you believe the Supreme Court gets it right all the time, Representative Smith? Do you agree with the Supreme Court when they said Roe v. Wade? Or the ruling on Obamacare?

SMITH: Probably a little bit—they probably get it right a little bit more than you and I do, Jonathan. There’s no question.

STICKLAND: There’s some of us here who think that the State of Texas is the only sovereign entity in government, and that we created the cities and the federal government, and we don’t have to bow down to them or the Supreme Court, especially when they're unconstitutional.

SMITH: I appreciate your sentiment.

STICKLAND: So do you feel that this changes the way the justice system will operate in Texas? Do you feel that your bill will change the way the justice system operates in Texas?

SMITH: Not fundamentally, no.

STICKLAND: You don’t think so?

SMITH: No, thank you.

REPRESENTATIVE TOTH: How's this for hazing, Reggie?
SMITH: I like those questions.

TOTH: Okay, now I have a serious question for you. Are you aware of what the state law says requiring the need for a fingerprint when it comes to renewing your license?

SMITH: I believe I do, yes.

TOTH: What does it call for?

REPRESENTATIVE NEVÁREZ: Mr. Speaker, members, I'll be brief. What this bill does is it allows us to clear cases where young men, young women, people of all races and colors who have been violated and murdered—we bring justice to the families. What this bill does not do, it does not invade your privacy. It takes 20 markers from your DNA. It can't tell me whether you're a black man, a white man, a brown man, a yellow man. It can't tell me if you have a heart murmur or if you've got clubfoot. But what it does tell you within one quintillion, it does tell me if you've committed a crime where there's DNA.

We have Louisiana clearing our backlog of cases. Louisiana is standing up for young men and women that are murdered, raped, it doesn't matter—another state is clearing our crime database because we're afraid of having our mouths swabbed. It doesn't identify us. It doesn't invade our privacy. It doesn't take genetic material from us that will somehow mark us as undesirable or not welcome in this state. It doesn't do that. We get our fingerprints taken. If you have tattoos, when you're arrested they take pictures of your tattoos. It's ridiculous to assert or to say that somehow our privacy is invaded. What it does is it clears crime in this state. That's what it does. It does not turn criminal justice on its head. It doesn't turn the innocence presumption on its head. What it does is protect men and women in this state from being murdered and raped, and it brings closure to families. I urge you to vote one.

REPRESENTATIVE CANALES: Mr. Speaker, members, I'm moved by the passionate conversations that have happened here, but let me tell you what does happen. When you are convicted—convicted—of a rape, a murder, or a heinous crime, you mandatorily have to give your DNA, and there is a database. There is a database of these people—these monsters that have offended, that are convicted—and that is a bank that we keep. Well, now, what we're going to do is if you're just arrested, you're going to be in that data bank with these people. And what they're saying is that this isn't an invasion on your privacy. This is the recipe of your existence. This is the one thing that is the most primal, the most basic recipe of your life. And for someoone to stand up here and say that that's not an invasion of your privacy, that you don't have to be convicted, that you're just—we're giving it away—then why don't we all just start swabbing ourselves right here? Let's create the biggest Big Brother data bank so big government can all make sure we wrap the world in bubble tape.

The bottom line is it's an invasion of privacy. You're not convicted. You shouldn't have to give your DNA if you're not convicted. And just because you've been arrested, you will be lumped in with the murderers, the rapists, and the killers, and you have to believe that if you're exonerated, they'll take you off.
Remember that. And if you think it's funny right now or you think it's not serious, wait till your family members are part of this data bank just because they got arrested. Not convicted, just arrested—just arrested—and now you're in the bank with the monsters, with the killers, and you've got to hope that government takes you out of there when you're exonerated. I think this is a terrible Big Brother, big government bill. If you think big government, Big Brother, is what you want, vote for this.

REPRESENTATIVE GOODWIN: I sat in the committee hearing and listened to the testimony on this bill, and it was very compelling to listen to the women, those stories of rape, of having a little sister killed. Sometimes there are multiple rapes before someone's convicted. Are we going to wait until a rapist has committed his crime over and over and over before we take DNA? You've heard that only 20 markers are taken, and those 20 markers don't identify a person. They simply allow us to either convict or exonerate somebody else with the same matching 20 markers. This is a good bill, and I hope that y'all will consider what it could do for the people of this state and vote for it.

TOTH: Members, I ask you to consider the fact that to get a driver's license in the State of Texas, they ask for one marker. And it's stated very clearly they get one marker, one fingerprint. Yet in 2014, as soon as we dropped out of session—it was 2013, as soon as we left session—what happened is the State of Texas all of a sudden said we're going to take 10 markers. Without our approval, they just went ahead and did that. Even though statutorily it was illegal for them to do that, all of a sudden now they wanted 10 markers. The Founding Fathers understood the heart of man in the fact that man should not be trusted. It's not that we don't love and care about the people that serve us in the State of Texas, but government should not be trusted. This is a bad bill. Please vote against it.

P. KING: I wasn't going to get involved in this, but I really think we're making it way too complex. You know, a police officer goes to the scene of a crime, and they collect, if it's a sexual assault maybe a semen sample, or they collect from under fingernails. They might collect from scratches some DNA—if I scratch Representative Miller right now, I'm going to get some DNA samples, probably. They find some blood on the glass where someone crawled in a window, and out of that they extract some DNA. It's a great opportunity to be able to solve a crime, but you've got to have some DNA to compare that to. And if you don't have DNA to compare it to, you might as well not even collect it. We've been still operating the same way we operated in 1890, for so many years using fingerprints. Well, fingerprints have a lot of errors, and they're hard to gather, and they're hard to read. DNA is an exact science. How many times have we heard it being used to exonerate somebody? So the ability to have a database—it's not being used to gather anybody's medical history. It's not being used to get anybody's ethnicity or anything like that. It's simply being able to be used to compare against offenders. And what's going to happen as this database grows, you're going to have somebody who gets arrested for assault in a bar fight in Fort Worth, and they're going to figure out that their DNA matches a sexual assault or a murder of a child or a burglary of a habitation in Houston two or three years earlier—and they’re going to solve that crime. And they’re going to do it not with circumstantial evidence that can make mistakes. And they’re going to do it not with eyewitnesses which can make mistakes. And they’re not going to do it with videos that are hazy. They're going to do it with an exact science of DNA, and it's going to save people's lives, and protect people.

Now, is there a risk? We're all a little worried about this brave new world of DNA, but it's going to be a very, very protected database. It is. Everybody's going to be cautious and careful about it. And I just think it's a great opportunity for the State of Texas to be part of what the rest of the country is doing and be in the next generation of crime solvers. So I would just urge you to vote for this bill. And you know, if a problem comes up, which I don't think it will, we're going to be back here in about 18 months, and we'll just fix it.

DUTTON: Mr. Speaker, members, thank you. Like Phil, I wasn't going to get involved in this, but the more I thought about this, the question I had to ask myself is, where do my freedoms come from? Because let me tell you this, what we're doing is an assault on everybody in our district's freedom in the name of trying to catch the bad guys. And I can't say enough to you that that's not where we ought to be. That's not the way we ought to do it. We're doing this in terms of people who are arrested this session. One of these sessions we'll come back here, we'll do it for everybody who applies to go to college. We'll do it, and we'll move from there. Then we'll start doing it for everybody who goes to public school. And then we'll stop there and say, wait a minute, maybe we ought to at birth take your DNA. Maybe we ought to take your DNA at birth, because we don't know whether you're going to turn out to be a criminal or not.

Now, I don't understand why people are willing to accept the idea that this is the way we ought to treat law enforcement. I have a bill that—you know, it bothers me because the bill simply says that in resisting arrest they have to tell you why you are being arrested—and it's never gotten to this house floor. But we get a bill like this to the house floor because no one wants to stand up here and say, look, I represent not criminals, not people that are bad guys—I represent the people who want to be free, the people who say that government ought to stay across the line. And when government crosses the line, I say no. I say no, that's where government stops. And today what I'm telling you is, this is an assault not only on my freedom and your freedom but the freedom of all the people we represent in this state. And when they look back and say, wait a minute, where did this start? They'll look at today as the moment and say, wait a minute, this started because a young man had a good idea, he thought, for a bill in the Texas Legislature that said we were going to go out and capture all the bad guys.

Now, what I'm saying to you is that you ought to stop. We ought to stop and take a look at this. Because I realize that if we had everybody in the world's DNA in a bank, in some kind of database, we could probably catch every criminal until somebody came up with a way in which they can make DNA non-accountable. And trust me, that'll happen, too. That'll happen, too. At some point in our history, in our future, somebody is going to come up with a way in which, scientifically, to alter your DNA. And then what are we going to do? And then what will we do? But that will only happen after we've decided that DNA is collectable from everybody in the country for whatever reasons. If you want to be a legislator, you've got to give your DNA. If you want to run for office, you've got to have your DNA. Now, where does this stop? And I can go on and on and on. But I'm voting against this bill because today for me is the day that I say no to government and yes to freedom.

CANALES: This bill says that you'd be entitled to an expunction, but you've practiced criminal law, haven't you, Representative Dutton?

DUTTON: I don't like the idea when government takes something away and then they say they're going to give it back.

CANALES: That's right, but let me ask you a question. Roughly, would you agree that an expunction is about $5,000?

DUTTON: Well, yeah, if you hire me or you.

CANALES: And how many people can run around and afford that? So what this is going to do—let's just say you are exonerated. You still stay in the databank with the monsters until you've got your five grand to clear your name.

DUTTON: Well, that's what I'd object about the bill, too, because it doesn't provide for automatic expunction.

CANALES: It does not.

DUTTON: It doesn't provide that the court on its own motion—what we call sua sponte—the court can do it on its own. That could've been in this bill.

CANALES: Could've.

DUTTON: But that exposes the real purpose and why this bill is here. This bill is an assault on people, and just like I said before, not on all people but particularly an assault on poor people.

CANALES: I think since we're swabbing people that are innocent, the author should accept an amendment that says we'll just swab the legislature right now.

DUTTON: Well, I think we'd do better, members, if we said, okay, I'll tell you what, we're going to give $500 to every person who comes in and gives their DNA. I oppose this bill, and I hope you do, too.

But as I told you this morning, I have a couple of real questions to ask you relative to legislative intent on this bill, if you don't mind.

REPRESENTATIVE PACHECO: Yes, sir. I do not mind.

MURPHY: So this kind of recognition doesn't lead to any claims on any tribal lands of this group of Indians, does it?

PACHECO: No, it does not.

MURPHY: All right. And it would not enable these tribes to own or operate any casinos. Is that also correct?

PACHECO: That is correct.

MURPHY: And you're really recognizing a group of tribes not an individual tribe?

PACHECO: That is correct.
