Amendment No. 2 was adopted.

CSHB 1535, as amended, was passed to engrossment.

HB 1555 ON SECOND READING

(by Clardy, Holland, Canales, Goldman, and K. Bell)

HB 1555, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the Upper Guadalupe River Authority, following the recommendations of the Sunset Advisory Commission; altering terms of the board of directors; specifying grounds for the removal of a member of the board of directors.

Representative Clardy moved to postpone consideration of HB 1555 until the end of today's calendar.

The motion prevailed.

CSHB 18 ON SECOND READING

(by Slawson, Patterson, M. González, Burrows, Darby, et al.)

CSHB 18, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the protection of minors from harmful, deceptive, or unfair trade practices in connection with the use of certain digital services.

CSHB 18 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE J. GONZÁLEZ: On page 5 of your bill, lines 25 and 26, you seek to prevent content that includes sexual exploitation, enticement, grooming, trafficking, abuse, and child pornography. For the purposes of legislative intent, can you describe some of the content that would be banned by this provision?

REPRESENTATIVE SLAWSON: Well, through testimony and families being in our office, Representative, we've heard a lot of very unfortunate stories about even how communications based on emojis between users have been mechanisms for sex traffickers and child traffickers to identify potential victims and to begin to groom them for those trafficking purposes. So through this, we're trying to ensure that there's a reasonable duty of care here to prevent our kids from being exposed to those.

J. GONZÁLEZ: Okay. Would content on sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression be limited by this bill?

SLAWSON: Has nothing to do with it. It's not mentioned in here anywhere at all.

J. GONZÁLEZ: Okay. Thank you for that clarification. Also, the same provisions in your bill—would it prohibit content referencing sexual assault? For example, if someone is young and they have some questions and they start researching to see if they're a victim of sexual assault, would content like that be limited?

SLAWSON: That's a great question. That's an important question. If someone is on a search engine and they're just searching for resources related to a sexual assault, this doesn't prevent what might pop up there. This would affect if there's a website that wants them to enter into a user agreement to obtain services related to whatever content they provide on the website. But this wouldn't restrict a search engine from popping up a hotline number.

J. GONZÁLEZ: So if somebody isn't sure that they were a victim of sexual assault or date rape, and they were searching "this and this happened, am I a victim of this?" Would something like that be limited with this bill?

SLAWSON: No, it wouldn't affect a search engine showing.

J. GONZÁLEZ: Thank you for that clarification.

REMARKS ORDERED PRINTED

Representative Manuel moved to print remarks between Representative Slawson and Representative J. González on CSHB 18.

The motion prevailed.

CSHB 18 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE A. JOHNSON: I did want to ask a couple questions because you and I talked about the part of algorithms that can address and potentially restrict access from one individual—for example, a young girl who is on social media and somebody over here who is operating as a pimp and is using social media as a bridge between the two. I know in your amendment it talks about the issue on page 2, lines 20 and beyond, it talks about "must comply with civil, criminal, or regulatory inquiry or investigation." Is it also your intent that protective obligations, such as social media keeping perpetrators from victims, is still implicit in their algorithms?

REPRESENTATIVE SLAWSON: Yes.

A. JOHNSON: And then on page 1, with regard to line 19 of the amendment, where it talks about an "operator or provider regulated by Subchapter D, Chapter 32, Education Code"—who do you anticipate would be limited out by that definition?

SLAWSON: Under the Education Code, there are specific businesses that their primary business model is operating for school purposes, so they are not a company that's also providing general services to the public. So it is targeted.

A. JOHNSON: Is it just for education school purposes or could it also apply to larger companies like Google or YouTube or Amazon or folks like that?

SLAWSON: It would not apply to the larger companies like Google or YouTube, it would just be for school purposes.

COMMITTEE MEETING ANNOUNCEMENT

At 2:08 p.m., the following committee meeting was announced:

Corrections, upon adjournment today, Desk 25, for a formal meeting, to consider pending, referred, and committee business.

CSHB 185 ON SECOND READING

(by M. González, Moody, and VanDeaver)

CSHB 185, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the inclusion of chronically absent students as students at risk of dropping out of school and the collection and reporting of data regarding those students.

Amendment No. 1

Representative Tinderholt offered the following amendment to CSHB 185:

Amend CSHB 185 (house committee printing) on page 5, line 20, between "ethnicity," and "and" by inserting "United States citizenship or permanent residency status,".

Amendment No. 1 - Point of Order

Representative Zwiener raised a point of order against further consideration of Amendment No. 1 under Rule 11, Section 2, of the House Rules. The speaker sustained the point of order, announcing his decision to the house as follows:

Ms. Zwiener raises a point of order against further consideration of the Tinderholt Amendment (Amendment No. 1), under Rule 11, Section 2, on the grounds that the amendment is not germane.

The bill requires the collection of certain information regarding chronically absent students reported through the Public Education Information Management System to be disaggregated among demographic categories specified by the bill.

Mr. Tinderholt argues that his amendment merely adds additional demographic categories that are the same as those in the bill. Ms. Zwiener notes that all of the demographic categories in the bill reference existing data already collected through PEIMS.

The Tinderholt Amendment's categories reference data that is not currently collected through PEIMS. Thus, the amendment is not germane. See 87 H. Jour. 2d C.S. 230 (2021).

Accordingly, the point of order is well-taken and sustained.

The ruling precluded further consideration of Amendment No. 1.

CSHB 185 was passed to engrossment.

SECTION _____. As soon as practicable after the effective date of this Act, the Health and Human Services Commission shall seek any necessary amendment to the state Medicaid plan or other appropriate authorization from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services or other appropriate federal agency to implement Section 32.0271, Human Resources Code, as added by this Act, and may delay implementing that section until the amendment or other authorization is granted.

CSHB 2071 ON SECOND READING*(by Jetton, C.J. Harris, DeAyala, Cortez, Lozano, et al.)

CSHB 2071, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to certain public facilities used to provide affordable housing.

CSHB 2071 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE JETTON: Members, CSHB 2071 adds guardrails to existing economic development tools that provides workforce housing for essential individuals like teachers, nurses, and law enforcement. The bill stops abuses of the program by tightening up the standards to use the program, requiring transparency, and increasing accountability while keeping tools flexible enough to be used around the state. The bill requires local governments to sign off on this tool and ensures Texans hold their elected officials accountable for how the tool is used. I want to thank the many members and stakeholders that have helped draft this bill and ensure that it will end the abuses while preserving the tool for local governments that desperately need to resolve real and immediate workforce housing needs.

REPRESENTATIVE GATES: What does your bill see as the problem with PFCs?

JETTON: The bill looks at PFCs as an economic development tool derived of workforce housing at the discretion of elected bodies that get to meet those needs.

GATES: But what is the problem you see with PFCs that your bill is trying to correct?

JETTON: There's not enough accountability and transparency. That is what this bill seeks to address.

GATES: Has there been an abuse in using the PFCs?

JETTON: Arguably there have been abuses, especially when we look at the Houston Housing Authority and a lot of cases that have happened in Harris County.

GATES: And what are some of those abuses that your bill is trying to correct?

JETTON: Ensuring that when apartments are taken off the tax rolls, that they're done with providing sufficient, affordable housing to offset those.

GATES: When they use the PFCs, they get their taxes wiped out, is that right?

JETTON: That is correct.

GATES: And how long are their taxes wiped out?

JETTON: For as long as the PFC agreement is in place.

GATES: And those are usually 75 to 99 years?

JETTON: However long the PFC agreement lasts.

GATES: Typically, is that 75 to 99 years?

JETTON: The amendment that we will be adding on to here will require a minimum of 10 years.

GATES: What is the maximum?

JETTON: There is no maximum on it.

GATES: So can it be further than 99 years?

JETTON: As long as the elected local body determines that is what is needed, yes.

GATES: Currently, it's 99 years, and you're saying your bill is going to let it go even longer than 99?

JETTON: It's going to create a minimum of 10 years.

GATES: And what is the maximum?

JETTON: There is not a maximum.

GATES: And to get this 100 percent tax abatement—there is no maximum, it can go more than 99 years—what do they have to give up to get that?

JETTON: There's different criteria for acquisitions and new developments for a percentage of that to go toward workforce housing level, so 60 percent and 80 percent AMI.

GATES: But if he's able to lease at that, can he do it and not actually lose any money?

JETTON: I'm not understanding your question.

GATES: What if the project is already at that level?

JETTON: I'm not aware of any apartments that were already at 60 percent AMI, and if they were already at 60 percent AMI, I'm not sure why an elected body would remove that property from the tax rolls to supply what is already being supplied.

GATES: The way the structure is right now is not part of the problem. It's that developers are getting this 100 percent tax write-off, and you can't see what the public benefit is.

JETTON: I think that is why we are trying to provide transparency. So that whenever something is pulled off the tax rolls, there is evidence of actual workforce housing made available. If it's not made available, then the governing body that approved it is held accountable for that. And being held accountable for that, I don't believe that they will leave those off the tax roll when they are not providing a benefit to the area that they're intending to.

GATES: For every dollar of the tax benefit that the developer gets, shouldn't there be some guaranteed minimum that is going to go to a public benefit?

JETTON: There are sufficient guardrails in the bill that we put together to ensure that at least a minimum of workforce housing is made available through the PFC. The governing bodies have the ability to provide deeper affordability if they desire. Because each deal is different, I don't think that you can say what the return on investment is going to be for any of these deals.

GATES: But isn't the problem that a lot of these deals—you mentioned Houston—there is no benefit that can be determined? Is there a minimum guarantee that your bill says has to go to a public benefit?

JETTON: There's a percentage that would have to go toward 60 percent AMI and a percentage that has to go through 80 percent AMI.

GATES: I understand that, but what if that doesn't result in any reduction of the tenants' rent? What if all those rents were already market rent?

JETTON: Then the governing body that approved that PFC would remove the PFC exemption and add them back to the tax roll. The point of the accountability that's on this bill is that there's an annual audit. The exemption only exists as long as they are meeting the agreement with the city for the workforce housing percentages.

GATES: Is there a minimum that you'll agree to in your bill that needs to go to a public benefit? Here's what I see—you mentioned Houston—the developers getting 100 percent tax write-off, but in some of these deals the developer is keeping 90 percent of that money. Only 10 percent of that is going to actual reduction rents. Do you understand that?

JETTON: I understand that. That is why we put in place accountability and transparency. So that if there is abuse of the PFC system, there are governing bodies, your city or county, that are going to be held accountable for those PFCs that are.

GATES: So your bill doesn't have any minimum amount to guarantee that there has to be a public benefit?

JETTON: The bill has guardrails in regard to the percentage of units that have to go towards 60 percent AMI and 80 percent AMI.

GATES: And how does your bill deal with the auditor? Do they get to self-audit or is it going to be independent, like how the state does the audit?

JETTON: They can elect a third-party auditor.

GATES: Who picks that auditor?

JETTON: That would be determined between the PFC and local governments to weigh into. We're talking about auditors that have licensing and certifications that they're not going to put in jeopardy for an audit. I would also add that we have a conflict of interest portion that is being added to this bill with an amendment, as well.

GATES: So it sounds like your bill allows the developer to pick the auditor.

JETTON: They could pick the auditor.

GATES: Okay. You don't see a problem with the developer being able to pick their own auditor?

JETTON: I would have a serious issue if a certified auditor—if someone was willing to risk their license to forge PFC documents for a unit to be able to take that exemption.

GATES: Do they have to determine that there's actually a benefit to the public? Does the audit show how much the developer is giving in reduced rents and how much is going in his pocket?

JETTON: The audit is intended to show how many units go towards 60 percent, 80 percent, or whatever was agreed upon between the PFC and the governing body.

GATES: So if they meet that term, and it winds up there's no public benefit, the developer gets to keep 100 percent of the tax write-off and there's no public benefit?

JETTON: If there's no public benefit, the governing bodies that approve these tax exemptions would no longer keep those exemptions in place.

GATES: But Mr. Jetton, we already know that's happening.

JETTON: There's a lack of transparency around PFCs right now. This bill intends to ensure that there is transparency, so that there can be accountability.

GATES: When you say transparency, is the audit going to actually show whether there is actually any public benefit?

JETTON: It is going to show how many units are at 60 percent AMI, 80 percent AMI, or whatever is agreed to between the PFC and the governing body.

GATES: I got that. But what if that is market rents? And if it is market rents at those different income levels you said and there is no public benefit, is the audit going to show that?

JETTON: Yes, the audit will show that. And therefore, there can be accountability and the governing bodies that realize that they are not providing a public benefit will remove those PFC exemptions.

GATES: Okay. A typical deal—if the developer's getting—the average is a $1 million tax write-off. How much do you see that the developer is keeping in his pocket, and how much is going to rent reduction?

JETTON: I think that every deal, every apartment—and you know this—every apartment has a different market rate that they're operating at and different operating expenses that they operate at. And so having a one-size-fits-all, this is the criteria, does not work. And this is why we have designed this program—this is beyond me, this is not me creating this economic development tool. This is an economic development tool that already exists to ensure that there is a tool for local governments to be able to provide workforce housing. We want to make sure that there's sufficient guardrails and accountability. That's the goal of this bill.

GATES: So the audit doesn't show if the developer's actually losing money? Your bill doesn't say that there has to be a minimum proven and public benefit. All you have to do is just meet and make sure you rent a certain number of units at certain income levels?

JETTON: That is correct. The agreement made between the PFC and the local governments is what the PFC should be operating at.

GATES: For a new development, the biggest need is for families, three bedrooms and two bedrooms. Does your bill say that you've got to have a certain minimum of three bedrooms and two bedrooms?

JETTON: I do not believe that there is a need in all 254 counties, all the different cities, to have three bedroom apartment requirements. I can tell you that the bill does ensure that there's proportionality in the workforce housing that's made available. So out of those 60 percent AMI units, it has to be proportionally distributed between efficiencies, one bedrooms, two bedrooms, or whatever is offered at that apartment.

GATES: Your bill doesn't address two bedrooms, it doesn't address three bedrooms. In your bill, a developer could build all efficiencies and one bedrooms?

JETTON: If the agreement between the PFC and the local government that is elected by the constituents determines that their area needs efficiencies, one bedrooms, and that's it, then I think this is an economic development tool that they can use where there's still proportionality at those 60 percent AMI rates between both the one bedroom and the efficiencies.

GATES: So your bill doesn't set any minimums. It just depends on the goodness of the developer and whoever does the deal—the city or the housing authority?

JETTON: The intent of the bill is to make sure there's sufficient guardrails. And so we want to make sure that there's flexibility, regardless of where they operate in the state, to meet the needs of that specific area. When we move everything to elected bodies making these decisions, they are representing a constituency that will now be able to see with their own eyes to determine whether or not there's 60 percent AMI, 80 percent AMI, 50 percent AMI, whatever that local body says needs to be provided and that those homes, those apartments are being made available to the workforce in their area. And if they're not, then there can be accountability for those individuals.

GATES: Okay, let me go to some other questions. Let's say it's a $1 million write-off for taxes that have been wiped out. Would you agree that half of that is for school taxes?

JETTON: Likely, yes.

GATES: Okay. When the school taxes are wiped out, who makes that up?

JETTON: Either other property taxpayers or the State of Texas.

GATES: The State of Texas—under the Robin Hood plan, the state would have to make up that difference, wouldn't they?

JETTON: In some cases, yes.

GATES: Or they just raise the taxes on everyone else?

JETTON: That's how property taxes work. When valuation is pulled off and the tax revenue stays the same, then it's pulled from other sources, other valuations.

GATES: So there's going to have to be a tax increase then?

JETTON: There's a potential for property tax increase for other individuals. If the State of Texas picks it up, then it comes out of our general revenue.

GATES: If you wipe out $1 million in local property taxes, the city loses it, the county loses it, and the school loses it. Who makes it up? You're saying there may not be a tax increase?

JETTON: My argument is that if a local governing body determines that this is a value to their area to use this economic development tool, then that governing body is going to be held accountable by the people of that area. And this is an economic development tool that we want to have available in all areas of the state.

GATES: They can go to a housing authority and do this deal, can't they?

JETTON: They could not.

GATES: Could they go to a municipal district and do the deal?

JETTON: If it is made up of an elected body, yes.

GATES: So if you go to a municipal district and do the deal—and that's a very low part of the tax pie, would you agree?

JETTON: Actually, I take that back. That is not accurate. The amendment that we're adding on there is only going to allow a municipality to approve a PFC. If they are an unincorporated area, then a county would be able to approve it. Those are the only two that can approve a PFC.

GATES: Inside a city, can a management district approve a deal?

JETTON: No, sir.

GATES: Okay. If it's in the city, then the city can approve the deal?

JETTON: Yes, sir.

GATES: Now, you give notice to the county, right?

JETTON: Yes, sir.

GATES: Can they deny and say, "We don't think this is a good deal." Do they, unilaterally, have the option to approve the deal or not?

JETTON: They could not.

GATES: They don't?

JETTON: They could not stop it.

GATES: They can't stop it?

JETTON: It would have to be approved during a public hearing where they could voice their concerns with it, and also because it's during a public hearing, the constituency could raise a concern about it.

GATES: They can express their concern, but they can't stop it. The school districts—

JETTON: To the extent that if they are going against the will of the people, they won't be reelected.

GATES: The school district—they're going to get notice, but they don't have the right to stop the deal, do they?

JETTON: That's correct.

GATES: Even if it's a bad deal, they can't stop it?

JETTON: If it's a bad deal, then there's going to be accountability for those elected officials that approved that deal through an election.

GATES: Right. And so let's say we have the county can't approve it, the school district doesn't get to approve it, but the city gets to approve it. Now, can they work a deal with the developer and say, "Hey, if we're going to lose these taxes, we want you to pay us a fee that compensates us for the taxes we're losing." Can they do that under your bill?

JETTON: For payment in lieu of taxes to exist, the governing body would have to approve it, which would be counterproductive for them.

GATES: If they go to the city and do the deal, can they offer the city a payment in lieu of the taxes they are going to lose? Can they do that under your bill?

JETTON: In theory, but if they're removing it from the tax rolls, I don't understand what the payment in lieu of taxes would resolve. The whole point of the PFC program is to remove the property tax burden.

GATES: And right there, Mr. Jetton, you just hit on one of the key abuses in this program. Virtually every deal that's been done in the city of Houston and Dallas, they make sure that they get a payment in lieu of their taxes, and everyone else loses all their taxes. Did you know that?

(C.J. Harris in the chair)

JETTON: I would like to continue on with what we were talking about, which is payment in lieu of taxes. Because when you talk about that abuse, we're talking about the Houston Housing Authority taking property off the tax rolls and accepting payment in lieu of taxes to the housing authority. We are moving this to where only elected bodies get to determine this. So the advantage of taking property taxes off to accept payment in lieu of taxes doesn't make sense. It made sense whenever the Housing Authority was the one that was taking off the property tax rolls. We're removing that.

GATES: Mr. Jetton, I appreciate what you're trying to accomplish in your bill. I think we have the same goal. We're trying to bring some accountability to this whole thing. If you think it's wrong to do the payment in lieu of taxes, would you be okay with an amendment to prevent anyone doing a payment in lieu of taxes? Would you be okay with that?

JETTON: I would consider an amendment. And I just want to add that this bill has been worked on by many stakeholders over several months. An attempt has been made to make sure we are addressing this need, this PFC tool, from all the different angles. At the end of the day, all of our stakeholders, none of them are happy with the end result in the sense that everybody is giving some. When we talk about the big overarching philosophical thing that I wanted to make sure was on this bill, which is the elected boards being the only ones able to implement PFCs. The whole idea is to put in guardrails and put in transparency so that there can be accountability. So this economic development tool makes sense in all areas of the state. I would be willing to look at an amendment dealing with PILT. It has not been brought up as a suggestion as of yet.

GATES: Well, I believe if we could do an amendment to eliminate the payment in lieu of taxes, that that would go a long way to bringing reform. Because that way someone getting a payment in lieu of their taxes wouldn't benefit for their own self-interest. They would have skin in the game.

You say the audit. Wouldn't you think it would be better to maybe have—the state is going to have to make up for all these school property taxes that are wiped out. Wouldn't it be better to have a truly independent Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs do the audit? Wouldn't that make better sense to have the state do the audit themselves and be truly independent?

JETTON: I think that we have qualified CPAs in the State of Texas that have certifications and licensing attached to their auditing. I think it would be unreasonable to assume that they would commit fraud to protect a PFC. And if they did, I think there's a proper accountability around those licensing for any auditors. I don't agree, necessarily, with adding another state agency to have to audit what will eventually go to the appraisal district for storing and review, what we can do with private auditors today.

GATES: I see it like if you go get a loan at a bank on your home. The bank isn't going to let you bring your own appraisal from a licensed appraiser. They're going to want to pick that appraiser themselves. It's not really that anyone's doing something dishonest. In this case, I would think the state would feel better if it was doing the audit and it had control of who was doing the audit. And why would you be resistant to that?

JETTON: I think there is a difference between an appraisal, where there is subjective biases that go into it, versus a financial audit that is a report of numbers and your books.

GATES: But why would you be resistant with the state doing the audit?

JETTON: I don't believe we need another government entity to audit what we have private sector CPAs to handle.

GATES: Well, that's what their job is. Texas Department of Housing, that's who audits all the tax credit deals from the department. This wouldn't be a big load on them because we could charge a fee because I'm sure whoever is going to do the audit is going to charge a fee. Just let the state do the audit. That way it's truly independent. Would you be open to that?

JETTON: This would once again fall into the category of things that among the stakeholder discussions that we've had, this is not a discussion that has been brought up. I'm willing to consider an amendment on this to address this. At the end of the day, again, we have CPAs that are licensed and capable of doing financial audits. There's accountability processes already in place for those auditors if they decide to cook the books or commit fraud. I don't believe that we need to add more government into the auditing process for what CPAs can already accomplish.

GATES: But you're open to an amendment to having the state do the audit?

JETTON: My general feeling throughout this entire process has been to have an open door and to make sure that we put together a bill that considers everyone's thoughts and ideas. Everybody has been invited to that table. My door remains open to the extent that we can make this bill better. I have not been approached by anyone, including you, about an amendment or specific language dealing with this audit.

GATES: And are stakeholders that you're referring to, aren't they the ones that are doing the PFC deals right now?

JETTON: Some of them are. And nobody is coming out of this genuinely happy with everything that's in this bill. Everybody is hurting a little, which is how I know and I feel comfortable that we are putting together a bill that properly addresses and puts proper guardrails around this economic development tool.

GATES: What about putting a time limit on these taxes? Instead of 99 years—you said there's a minimum of 10 years?

JETTON: A minimum of 10 years, yes. If someone is going to take advantage of property taxes being removed from the property tax rolls, there should be some long-term plan to it. If after that 10 years, at any point, the city or county that approved the PFC deal determines that it's not necessary anymore, it can be dissolved at that point.

GATES: So why not limit it to 15 years? Say a minimum of 10, a maximum of 15? I mean 99, that's longer than any of us are going to be alive in 99 years and our kids are going to be alive, virtually. Why 99 years? Why not let's put a limit of 15 or 20 years on this?

JETTON: Primarily, because elected officials will be the ones that approve or deny this. An elected official can turn this down and shut off this PFC at any point that they feel that it is not providing a benefit to their community anymore.

GATES: Okay, here's part of the reason. We're here today because we know there's abuses in the system. With the deals that have been done now, we are stuck for 99 years. So why not put a time limit of 15 or 20, just in case we're not making the right decisions today? We know we're here today because there's been abuses in the system. You agree with that?

JETTON: That is correct.

GATES: But we are stuck with those right now for 99 years. We don't know if we're making the right decisions today, so why not put a time frame of 15 or 20 years from today that it expires, in case we don't have it right now?

JETTON: The biggest piece of the puzzle that's missing right now is the transparency component.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE GATES: I'm having trouble understanding this amendment. Can you explain it?

REPRESENTATIVE JETTON: The amendment adds in language for a land use rider agreement, adds conflict of interest language, clarifies the audit report submission process, updates the affordability requirements, exempts certain conservation districts, includes additional language regarding vouchers, updates the effective date, and removes unnecessary cure reference.

GATES: I'm not understanding that. Can you explain that in layman's terms? It's a four-page amendment and that's the full description of it.

JETTON: Fortunately, I posted the amendment hours ago for everyone to be able to review.

Amendment No. 1 was adopted.

CSHB 2071 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Tinderholt raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 2071 under Rule 4, Section 32(c)(2), of the House Rules on the grounds that the bill analysis is substantially or materially misleading. The point of order was withdrawn.

Amendment No. 2

Representative Gates offered the following amendment to CSHB 2071:

Amend CSHB 2071 as follows:

- (1) On page 4, line 9, strike "and".
- (2) On page 5, line 2, between "Section 303.0425" and the underlined period, insert the following:

(5) before final approval of the development:

(A) the corporation or corporation's sponsor conducts, or obtains from a professional entity that has experience underwriting affordable multifamily residential developments and does not have financial interests in the applicable development, public facility user, or developer, an underwriting assessment of the proposed development to determine the appropriate category of income-restricted units to require at the development; and

(B) based on the assessment conducted under Paragraph (A), the corporation makes a good faith determination that the total annual amount of rent reduction on the income-restricted units provided at the development will be not less than 60 percent of the estimated amount of the annual ad valorem taxes that would be imposed on the property without an exemption under Section 303.042(c), for:

(i) the first three years after the rent stabilization period, for newly constructed developments; and

(ii) the second, third, and fourth years after the date of acquisition by the corporation, for developments occupied at the time of acquisition

AMENDMENT NO. 2 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE GATES: One of the problems in doing these PFCs is it wasn't even created by the legislature. It was created by a floor amendment in 2015 nine days before the end of session and everyone thought the amendment applied only to for-profit entities. In fact, there was a discussion on the senate side between Senator Estes and Senator Seliger when the amendment came up. The question was asked, "Senator, does this apply only if they continue in a nonprofit status?" The answer was, "Sorry, I didn't hear you." The question, "Does it apply only in a nonprofit status?" And the answer was, "What you're saying is the government entities would be nonprofits—not-for-profits. And the answer is, Yes."

And that was an accepted amendment that has turned into—in 2016, the first two PFC deals were done. By 2020, there was 30 of them done. In the last three years, there have been 225 PFCs done across the State of Texas that wiped out over $10 billion in assessed value. This is hurting our schools, this is hurting our counties, and it is hurting our cities. This is being taken from our fire departments, our police departments, and our neighborhood schools. They're getting their taxes wiped out and we can't determine if there's any public benefit.

What this amendment does is it establishes a floor of at least 60 percent of the tax benefit has to go to lower rents. There has to be a verifiable—by an audit—that at least 60 percent of that tax savings is going to lower rents. What the abuse is, and one of the reasons we're here, is because what's happening is in the vast majority of these deals less than 10 percent is actually going to—some of these deals have zero percent. One hundred percent of the money is going to developers' pockets. In fact, members, I own apartment complexes. I own 44 apartment complexes in Houston, Texas, and the surrounding area. Under this bill, the way it's written, 42 of my properties qualify, and I would not have to reduce the rent by one penny. I could get all of my property taxes wiped out for 99 years. That is the lack of guardrails on this system. So what this says, regardless of what you do, at 80 percent or 60 percent income level, at the end of the day, at least 60 percent of the tax savings has to go into lower rents. That's all this bill does. I feel like this should be higher, but at least 60 percent I think is a good compromise. The developer can keep 40 percent.

REPRESENTATIVE HOWARD: I have some questions, but I want to ask you this one first. So what you are saying is that these local government entities have the authority to exempt their own tax base to subsidize these apartment developments, but they also have the authority, apparently, to exempt the tax base of other taxing authorities. Is that correct? Without their approval?

GATES: That is right. With this payment in lieu of taxes, what a developer does is go to a city and says, "Hey, we will reimburse you for your taxes if you do this deal." If that becomes binding, then the school district gets no say-so and the county gets no say-so. So how do they pay for their sheriff's department?

HOWARD: I believe, is it not correct, that with other economic incentive programs that we've had in the state, that the approval of the taxing authority that it will be losing its tax revenue has a say in whether or not to approve that? Is that not correct? Like what we were dealing with 313s and that sort of thing, where the school boards got to make a decision about whether or not that particular loss of revenue was going to be okay with them since they were losing some of their tax base?

GATES: Under this bill, the school has no say-so.

HOWARD: Without the amendment that you just presented, does CSHB 2071 contain any mechanism that would ensure that a certain share of the tax benefit received by developers would go toward reducing rents for tenants and income-restricted units?

GATES: No, there's no guarantee, that's right. That's what this amendment does. It sets a minimum of at least 60 percent of the tax savings has to go to reduced rents.

HOWARD: Does CSHB 2071 contain any mechanism that would ensure that any of the tax benefit received by developers would go toward reducing rents for tenants and income-restricted units?

GATES: There's no guarantee under this bill.

HOWARD: So without the amendment before us, there's no guarantee that any of the tax savings received by these developers is actually going towards the public benefit of reducing rents in these income-restricted units, is that correct?

GATES: That is correct. And the other thing about this amendment is there's going to be an audit that goes with this amendment to determine and verify that it's actually happening.

HOWARD: Without this amendment, if a developer can figure out a way to reduce the required units only using say 25 percent of the tax benefit to do so, they can hold on to the remaining 75 percent, is that correct?

GATES: That's right. And under the bill right now, we don't even know if they're keeping more than 75 percent, that's right.

HOWARD: The developer can figure out a way to produce the units required by only using five percent of the tax benefit and holding on to the remaining 95 percent, is that correct?

GATES: That's right. That's what's being shown by investigative reporters that have gone and looked at some of these deals. Sometimes they can't find any public benefit.

HOWARD: Your amendment does not kill the PFCs, does it?

GATES: Absolutely not. I think that this can be a valuable tool if used in the right way.

HOWARD: What does this actually look like on the ground? Do we know how much of the 100 percent tax break the developers are actually using to reduce rents?

GATES: Right now, we have no way of knowing. Even under this bill, CSHB 2071, and even the audit—it doesn't audit to see if there's actually a benefit. It just makes sure that you're leasing to people at certain income levels, but that may not be resulting in any reduced rents.

HOWARD: So what your amendment is doing is trying to put some kind of accountability guardrails around this so that we know that we're getting benefits to affordable housing from these tax breaks, is that correct?

GATES: That is correct.

REPRESENTATIVE TINDERHOLT: So really in, I'll call it Army terms, the guy across the street that has a low-income apartment complex gets some percentage of their taxes reduced, and they show savings to the residents in the apartments. Is that semi-accurate? Not in PFCs, I'm talking about in most low-income apartment complexes.

GATES: In what kind of complex?

TINDERHOLT: Just low-income, HUD housing. Where they get—you know the ones that we have to sign for them to build in our area? They get reduced taxes. Is that correct? Well, they do, and let me explain. So the guy across the street gets some level of reduced taxes, but PFCs pay no taxes. Is that correct?

GATES: That's correct. This is a 100 percent wipeout of all the taxes for 75 to 99 years.

TINDERHOLT: So who gets to make up the difference for that 100 percent that they don't have to pay for—let's say they buy an apartment complex with 500 units. Since they're not paying taxes, who makes up the difference? Because the city needs a certain amount of money to operate. Who gets to pay for that?

GATES: I believe the way this bill is written, it's going to be a tax increase. Because everyone else is going to have to pay an increase in taxes.

TINDERHOLT: Right, so you and I and our constituents—when PFCs exist and come into town and they don't do anything for the residents in those complexes—they're pocketing the money, the people that own that apartment complex, they pocket the money while taxpayers, our constituents, have to pay the difference to make sure that fire and police and those things operate. Is that semi-accurate?

GATES: And our schools, that's correct.

TINDERHOLT: And the schools. And so what your amendment does is forces them to take 60 percent of that to put it back into the complex and help the people that live in that complex with decreased rent.

GATES: That is correct. It has to be verified that it's actually decreasing the rent.

REPRESENTATIVE JETTON: I ask that you vote against this amendment. The provisions we put inside this bill create guardrails and transparency so that there can be accountability of your local elected officials that approve PFCs. People are able to tell what workforce housing is made available in their community and determine whether or not that meets their goals. I'd ask for you to vote against this amendment. Thank you.

GATES: I think what has been shown of the abuses in this system is the fact—look, this PFC model, it can be a good tool if it's used properly. It was never really intended for for-profit apartment owners. But if we decide to continue on with this, then let's ensure that there is a minimum amount that's going to the tenants and actually reducing their rents. This is going to allow—if you say 60 percent is the goal, then the city and the developer can negotiate and decide if they are going to do two bedrooms or three bedrooms for people who really need it—those that are looking at the 50 or 60 percent AMI level.

You know, what's so frustrating—and you look at these—did you know that in the State of Texas virtually no apartment complexes now are being done with three bedroom and two bedroom apartments? Nothing is being done for families. And so this bill is going to ensure that with 60 percent going to lowering rents, there will be a motivation to make sure—maybe some three bedrooms and two bedrooms for families at the lower AMI levels. I ask you to vote for this amendment.

REPRESENTATIVE DEAYALA: The current bill, CSHB 2071, does have reduction—that is increased affordability—than what's in the current statute, correct? It's simple, CSHB 2071 increases the affordability requirements in PFCs from the current statute, correct?

GATES: No, see there's the problem. I think what you're referring to is it says you've got to lease some at 80 percent AMI, right—40 percent and it's going to say 10 percent of 60 percent of AMI, right? Okay. If the market rent is already lower than that, then you are not creating any affordability and that's the problem. We're not creating affordability if the market rents are already at that level. To make affordability—

DEAYALA: I understand what you're saying. The point I'm trying to get at is the current, at least from the metrics of AMI, is more affordable than the current statute, correct?

GATES: I look at affordability as is there going to be a benefit where it makes that apartment more affordable for a tenant? If they walk up and at those levels that you say the market rents are there, you haven't increased affordability. It's already there.

DEAYALA: I appreciate your hypothetical. Let me move on real quick. With this amendment you create a standard that is a one-size-fits-all for every community around the state regardless of what their needs are for workforce housing, more affordable housing, or whatever it is. This amendment sets a one-size-fits-all—not just where you and I are from, closer to Harris County—but across the entire state. Am I reading that correctly?

GATES: No, actually it does the opposite. If the goal at 60 percent has to go to lower rents, then in a high income area you wouldn't do as many units. In an area, say, where the AMI is lower, well then you may be able to do more than 50 percent of the units. This gives the maximum flexibility because if everyone says now the objective is to have at least 60 percent go to lower rents, you can now create whatever deal you want.

DEAYALA: Representative Gates, if I may, when you create that requirement at 60 percent of the tax value that's being given, you create "this is where you need to get to" regardless of affordability. Am I saying that correctly?

GATES: Under this bill at 60 percent, that means the developer keeps 40 percent. Are you saying the developer should be able to keep more than 40 percent?

DEAYALA: That's not the question I asked you. The question I asked you is how it relates to affordability. It's a number. It doesn't meet and give a community in West Texas, or East Texas, or somewhere else the flexibility for workforce housing if that's really the void that they need—if that's the gap that they need. It doesn't do that, does it? It doesn't give them that flexibility, does it?

GATES: Yes, it does. Because when you say 80 percent is medium income, there's going to be areas where the area median income is much, much lower or the tenants are much lower. Regardless of where you go in the State of Texas and do a PFC deal, you just have to structure it to where at least 60 percent goes to lower rents.

DEAYALA: Two things I think we can agree on is, number one, there are significant abuses in the current PFC law, right?

GATES: That is right.

DEAYALA: And this bill, CSHB 2071, does a lot to take care of transparency, does it not?

GATES: No.

DEAYALA: It does a lot to take care of accountability, right?

GATES: I don't understand how you think it does accountability,

DEAYALA: I'll leave it at that, thank you.

REPRESENTATIVE GERVIN-HAWKINS: Mr. Gates, is the PFC a good program? Is the PFC an effective, good program to promote low-income housing?

GATES: Under its current structure, it's not. The PFC for a for-profit developer is not working the way it should in providing lower income housing.

GERVIN-HAWKINS: So what you're saying is it would be more effective with nonprofit developers?

GATES: Under the section that this is being put together in—that's what this amendment applies to, the 60 percent of the tax savings.

GERVIN-HAWKINS: What you want to do is tell the developer to put 60 percent of the annual tax expense into reducing their rents? Is that what your bill is trying to accomplish?

GATES: Well, yes. He gets a 100 percent tax write-off exemption. He needs to put back 60 percent into lower rents.

GERVIN-HAWKINS: Let's do some simple math, Representative Gates—simple math. There's a project that costs $100,000. You've got all the other expenses to maintain it, and the tax line item on there is $15,000, but because you don't have to pay that $15,000, you can reduce the rents that you are collecting from your tenants. Is that correct?

GATES: Under the bill, the way it's currently structured, you're not bound to have to give any of that $15,000 back into lower rents.

GERVIN-HAWKINS: But when you run the numbers, your net income—because taxes is an expense line item—when you run your numbers, the advantage is that you have less expenses, correct? So in essence the tax revenue is going into lowering the rents?

GATES: No, you have your income here, and here's your expenses. You lower it by $15,000 here, and there's nothing in HB 2071 that says you have to reduce anything on the income side.

GERVIN-HAWKINS: No, but what it does say that is your debt service. Your debt service determines how much you can pay back to the lender. In essence, because you're not paying the property taxes, you can pay more in debt service, which allows you to give you a higher quality of a project and also have some cash flow.

GATES: Well, what happens is—it's kind of like if you own your home, and you've got two homes that are each worth $100,000 a piece, using your example. All of a sudden, you wipe out the taxes on one that doesn't have to pay taxes for 99 years. Well, someone is going to be willing to pay more for that house if they don't have to pay taxes for 99 years—if they get to keep all that tax savings. So yes, you will increase the value, and that's the problem. People are rushing into the State of Texas to do these deals because what happens is you reduce the taxes and so now you have a greater net operating income, which increases the value as long as the developer gets to keep that tax benefit. That's the problem. So what this bill is saying is, "Hey, you're going to have to give some of that back so that the rent comes down."

Amendment No. 3

Representative Gates offered the following amendment to CSHB 2071:

Amend CSHB 2071 (house committee report) on page 4 as follows:

(1) On line 9, strike "and".

(2) Between lines 9 and 10, insert the following:

(4) the multifamily residential development is approved by the governing body of the municipality, if any, the county, and the school district in which the development is located; and

(3) On line 10, strike "(4)" and substitute "(5)".

AMENDMENT NO. 3 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE GATES: The city, the county, and the school district are the ones that are going to lose their taxes. What this amendment does is it says that because they're going to have their taxes at risk, they get a say-so to make sure the deal is a good deal. It's just got to get the approval of all three taxing authorities—the city, the county, and the school.

REPRESENTATIVE JETTON: Members, I am asking you to vote no on this amendment. The bill is already made with proper guardrails in there for elected officials who approve these PFCs to be held accountable. I ask for you to please vote against this amendment.

A record vote was requested.

Amendment No. 4

Representative Slaton offered the following amendment to CSHB 2071:

Amend CSHB 2071 (house committee report) on page 10, between lines 2 and 3, by inserting the following:

(i-1) An independent auditor or compliance expert may not prepare an audit under Subsection (i) for more than three consecutive years for the same public facility user. After the third consecutive audit, the independent auditor or compliance expert may prepare an audit only after the second anniversary of the preparation of the third consecutive audit.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE SLATON: This is just a simple amendment to the bill that would bring some transparency. Similar to Sarbanes-Oxley where you can only keep an auditor for three years and then you have to change. It's going to be in place here where they can't keep an auditor for three years, and they would have to change.

Amendment No. 4 was adopted.

Amendment No. 5

Representative Gates offered the following amendment to CSHB 2071:

Amend CSHB 2071 (house committee report) as follows:

(1) On page 2, lines 3 and 4, strike "(a), (c), and (d)" and substitute "(a), (c), (d), and (g)".

(2) On page 3, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following:

(g) An exemption under Section 303.042(c) for a multifamily residential development to which Subsection (a) applies expires:

(1) for an occupied multifamily residential development that is acquired by a corporation, on the 10th anniversary of the date of the acquisition by the corporation; and

(2) for a multifamily residential development not described by Subdivision (1), on the 12th anniversary of the date the development receives, from the corporation or the corporation's sponsor, the final approval under this chapter that is necessary to obtain the exemption.

(3) Add the following appropriately numbered SECTION to the bill and renumber subsequent SECTIONS of the bill accordingly:

SECTION _____. Section 303.042(c), Local Government Code, is amended to read as follows:

(c) Subject to Section 303.0421(g), a [A] corporation is engaged exclusively in performance of charitable functions and is exempt from taxation by this state or a municipality or other political subdivision of this state. Bonds issued by a corporation under this chapter, a transfer of the bonds, interest on the bonds, and a profit from the sale or exchange of the bonds are exempt from taxation by this state or a municipality or other political subdivision of this state.

(g) This subsection and Subsection (f) expire December 31, 2025.

(3) On page 5, line 23, strike "Section 303.0425" and substitute "Sections 303.0425 and 303.0426".

(c) Not later than December 10, 2024, the board shall submit to the governor, the lieutenant governor, and the speaker of the house of representatives a report on the results of the study. The report must include an estimate of:

(1) the funding or revenue that the state has lost as a result of the exemptions; and

(2) the potential increase in funding or revenue that would result from the repeal of the exemptions.

(d) The board may delegate any authority granted to the board under this section that the board determines is necessary to conduct the study under this section.

(e) This section expires January 1, 2025.

(5) On page 14, between lines 25 and 26, insert the following:

(e) Section 303.0421(g), Local Government Code, as added by this Act, does not affect a tax exemption available to a multifamily residential development under Section 303.0421(f), Local Government Code, as amended by this Act, immediately before December 31, 2025. A tax exemption available to a multifamily residential development under Section 303.0421(f), Local Government Code, immediately before that date is covered by the law in effect when the development qualified for the exemption, and that law is continued in effect for that purpose.

AMENDMENT NO. 7 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE GATES: This approves lowering the area median income of the person at a lower level and improves accountability.

Amendment No. 7 was adopted.

Amendment No. 8

Representative Gates offered the following amendment to CSHB 2071:

Amend CSHB 2071 (house committee report) as follows:

(1) In added Section 303.0425(a), Local Government Code, add the following appropriately numbered subdivision and renumber subsequent subdivisions of the subsection accordingly:

( ) "Department" means the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs.

(2) Strike page 8, line 24, through page 10, line 26, and substitute the following:

(i) The department shall conduct an annual audit of each public facility user of a multifamily residential development claiming an exemption under Section 303.042(c) and to which Section 303.0421 applies, to:

(1) determine whether the public facility user is in compliance with this section and Section 303.0421; and

(2) identify the difference in the rent charged for income-restricted residential units and the estimated maximum market rents that could be charged for those units without the rent or income restrictions.

(j) The department shall complete and publish a report regarding the findings of an audit conducted under Subsection (i). The report must:

(1) be made available on the department's Internet website;

(2) be issued to a public facility user that has an interest in a development that is the subject of an audit; and

(3) describe in detail the nature of any failure to comply with the requirements in this section and Section 303.0421.

(j-1) The department shall adopt forms and reporting standards for the auditing process.

(k) The initial audit report required by Subsection (j) is due not later than June 1 of the year following the first anniversary of:

(1) the date of acquisition for an occupied multifamily residential development that is acquired by a corporation; or

(2) the date a new multifamily residential development first becomes occupied by one or more tenants.

(k-1) Subsequent audit reports following the issuance of the initial audit report under Subsection (k) are due not later than June 1 of each year.

(l) Not later than the 60th day after the date of receipt of the department's audit report under Subsection (j)(2), a public facility user shall provide a copy of the report to the comptroller, the appraisal district containing the development that is the subject of the report, the corporation, the governing body of the corporation's sponsor, and, if the corporation's sponsor is a housing authority, the elected officials who appointed the housing authority's governing board.

(l-1) Not later than June 1 of each year for which an audit is required under Subsection (i), a public facility user to which Section 303.0421 applies shall pay to the department a fee of $40 per unit contained in the development, as determined by the audit, to reimburse the department for expenses related to the audit.

(l-2) An exemption under Section 303.042(c) does not apply for a tax year in which a multifamily residential development that is owned by a public facility corporation created under this chapter is determined by an audit conducted under Subsection (i) to not be in compliance with the requirements of this section and Section 303.0421.

(l-3) An audit conducted under Subsection (i) is subject to disclosure under Chapter 552, Government Code, except that information containing tenant names, unit numbers, or other tenant identifying information may be redacted.
